Alleged swindle of dance hostess

Further hearing of the case involving the alleged swindle of a gold necklace valued at HK$200 from a dancing hostess continued before Mr. J. Reynolds at Central yesterday.

Defendant, Hung San, aged 31, was charged with obtaining the gold necklace from Chun Tin-ching, dancing hostess of the Tong Sai Dancing School of Queen's Road, West on May 13. Detective Sub-Inspector Gale prosecuted.

Complainant said that she was introduced to defendant by Detective Police Constable C. C. Cheung on April 16, when they went together to the New Territories.

Defendant then told her that he was from Chiu Chow but was born in Hong Kong. He added that he could not speak the dialect but his elder brother, a detective inspector in the Hong Kong Police Force, could.

On May 13, soon after midnight, defendant had come to the Tong Sai Dancing School and asked for a loan of $50. He told her that he was having a party and in his hurry had brought only one half of a HK$100 note, which was useless.

She told him that she had no money but he asked her for something which he could pawn or leave with the restaurant as security. She then gave him her younger sister's necklace, which defendant promised to return early next morning.

Next morning defendant visited her and told her that he had no money to redeem the necklace whereupon she reported the matter to the Police.

Prosecution request
Questioned by the Court, complainant said that she gave defendant the necklace because she believed that he was the brother of a Detective-Inspector in the Police.

Detective Police Constable C. C. Cheung also gave evidence in the witness box telling of a visit with defendant, complainant and her sister and another police constable to the New Territories on April 16.

During the giving of Cheung's evidence, Detective Sub-Inspector Gale asked the Court to treat him as a hostile witness.

Mr. Reynolds asked if he was a close friend of defendant but witness said that he had known him for only a short while, whereupon Mr. Reynolds said that at this point it was too late to treat him as a hostile witness.

After further evidence had been given by the sister of complainant, the case was adjourned till June 29.

Hanyang here from Swatow

The 3,000-ton ss. Hanyang which narrowly missed the Nationalist air attack on Swatow on Wednesday, arrived in Hong Kong safely yesterday.

The ship, which had more than 1,000 tons of cargo on board, brought no passengers.

She was standing by the listing ss. Anhui on Saturday, when four Nationalist planes began bombing the city. When the planes started an attack on three ships in the harbour, the Hanyang immediately put out beyond the three-mile limit.

An officer of the ship said yesterday that salvage work on the Anhui was, as far as he knew, going to proceed on schedule.

A British shipping official said yesterday that his company, and most others, were now directing their ships to avoid the Formosa Straits on the way to North China.

This action was predicated, he said, to avoid Nationalist planes and warships, which were conducting patrols every day over the Straits.

The Mollers tug, Frosty Moller, was reported yesterday to be standing by the Anhui, which settled on the bottom of Yu Yu Channel when she struck a mine three weeks ago.

More than 60 men are taking part in the salvage operations.

Appeal Court rejects condemned man's plea

Pun Kam, 37-year-old earth cooler, sentenced to hang for the murder of his wife's lover at the Criminal Sessions on May 19, appealed unsuccessfully before the Appeal Court yesterday for a reprieve of his death sentence.

The Appeal Court, comprising the Acting Puisne Judge, Mr. T. J. Gould, and the additional Judge Mr. A. D. Scholes, rejected the appeal on the ground that the trial judge, Mr. E. H. Williams, Acting Chief Justice, could not be expected to touch upon every aspect of the evidence in his summing-up before the jury.

Representations made
There was no evidence at the trial that the blood in the bed of the deceased was that of the accused, Mr. Pun Kam.

Mr. Wright said he had no objections to make on the conviction beyond those two points which, if put to the jury by the trial judge, might have influenced them in arriving at their verdict.

Strong representations have been made in favour of the mitigation of the death sentence, said Mr. Wright.

When told that his appeal had been turned down, Pun was visibly agitated, and he had to be assisted by his counsel through the Court interpreter, that Court presentations were being made for his reprieve.

Pun was convicted by a jury of six men and one woman of the murder of Wu Ting-hoi, "Waterworks" cooler. Wu was said to have seduced his wife, and Pun was alleged to have said "Wu wanted my wife, this day, my wife (murder) is to balance the account."

The prosecution was conducted by Mr. A. Lonsdale, Crown Counsel, assisted by Mr. D. H. Taylor of the "Homicide Squad," Police Headquarters.

STRONGER U.S. ORIENT POLICY PREDICTION

Move soon
American armed forces in the Far East are expected to play an important role in the future American diplomatic moves by holding on to the United States Far East defence line stretching from Alaska down through Japan and Okinawa to the Philippines.

Japanese strategists, observers believe, the Japanese may either use a separate peace to the near future or conditions which would amount to the same. Observers believe an end to the "state of war" will come soon.

Some quarters still believe there are a few points which may be in dispute between the United States and Japan, and that the Japanese are making a final policy for Japan. After the recommendations of both governments are in, it will be up to President Truman to resolve the differences.

U.S. security
Mr. Johnson said before his departure that he thinks the recognition of America as a world power is necessary in the Far East.

Mr. Johnson said "America must do and, I am sure, will do all that is necessary in the Far East for the security of the United States and peace in the world."

The Defence Secretary said he and General Starnes came to the Orient to secure the facts upon which the policy toward Japan should be based. "We are not interested in the security of the United States," he said.

Mr. Johnson said that the United States and Japan are in a "state of war" and that the United States is not interested in the security of the United States.

HK'S GRAND OLD MAN PRESENTS PORTRAIT TO "PRINCELY HOUSE"

Sir Robert Ho Tung presented his portrait—a painting by Sir Oswald Birley—to Jardine, Matheson and Company yesterday to mark his more than 67 years' association with the firm in an impressive ceremony attended by some 150 distinguished guests.

This was the second occasion on which Sir Robert had made such a presentation. The first portrait given in 1938 was removed during the Japanese occupation.

Mr. D. F. Landale, Manager of Jardine, Matheson Co., and Mrs. Landale were hosts to the large gathering in the Company's Board Room.

Among those present to congratulate Sir Robert were Mr. J. F. Nicoll, Officer Administering the Government, Air Commodore and Mrs. A. D. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Todd, Sir Man-keung Lo and Lady Lo, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Follows, Mr. I. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Chau, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Cassidy, Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Lo, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McDouall, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lo, Professor L. T. Hinde, Mr. C. C. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Rowell, Mr. and Mrs. L. Kadoorie, Mr. S. T. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Pennell, Dr. Irene Ho Cheng, Mr. Lam Hau-tak, Mr. A. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. H. Sidbury, and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Alexander.

In his opening address to the gathering, Sir Robert said that when he presented his portrait to Jardine, Matheson & Co. in 1938, he never thought for one moment that he would enjoy that privilege a second time.

"On occasions such as these, one is apt to indulge in reminiscences, but being an old man, I can but say a few words," he stated.

"My sentiments, however, are the same as they were 12 years ago. As my energetic secretary has managed to locate a Press clipping of that event, I would therefore ask you to bear with me awhile, so that my son can read to you my speech made on that occasion, which expressed my own happy memories of those early days," Sir Robert said.

Mr. Edward S. K. Ho Tung, read on behalf of his father the speech given by Sir Robert on February 10, 1938, when he first presented his portrait to the firm.

Said Sir Robert on that occasion: "I have, in the course of half a century, been the fortunate recipient of various honours from several quarters; but none has conveyed the same significance nor given me such a lively sense of satisfaction as that implied by today's (February 10, 1938) unveiling ceremony.

Sense of pride

"The firm of Jardine & the 'Princely House', as it is known in this part of the world, has become so much a part of my commercial life that I naturally share that sense of pride which every member of the firm feels when the name of Jardine's is mentioned.

"This feeling of pride is enhanced by the fact that during the time of my active association with it I was privileged to see its growth and expansion until it had attained the stature and status of an outstanding business organisation in the Far East.

"During a period of 20 years, that is, from 1880 to 1900, I came into intimate contact with men whose names stand high in the estimation of Hong Kong's business circles. Names such as those of William Keswick, Francis Bulkley-Johnson, William Johnston, John Bell-Irving, James Johnston Keswick, James Jardine Bell-Irving, John MacGregor, Alexander Palmer MacEwen, Sir Edward Alfred and Charles William Dickson, have each a place in the hall of fame in Hong Kong.

"On an occasion such as this one's mind inevitably looks back to the past. I can recall two incidents which vividly in connection with at least two of these men.

"When I was a youth of about 22 years of age, William Keswick was anxious to buy over the Lee Yuen Sugar Refinery because it was the most formidable of the China Sugar Refinery Company's competitors. The Tai Koo Sugar Refinery had then not yet come into existence.

It happened to learn about the impending deal and the further fact that the method which Mr. Keswick was employing in order to secure this competing sugar refinery would not be successful.

"Accordingly, one evening I took courage in both hands and as there were neither buses nor cars nor taxis nor motor-cars in those days, I availed myself of the only means of conveyance then available, namely a rickshaw, and began the rather long journey down to East Point. On arrival, I asked for an immediate interview. It was courteously granted.

"Having ventured to inform my chief that his scheme for acquiring the Lee Yuen Refinery would lead to a deadlock, I recommended a different method, namely the purchase of the shares of the company, which would give him a controlling interest.

"I remember vividly the great man of affairs saying to me: 'You are right, but I have no money.' I then suggested that he should approach the bank for a loan.

"The bank, however, refused to lend him the money. I then suggested that he should approach the Government for a loan. The Government, however, refused to lend him the money. I then suggested that he should approach the firm of Jardine, Matheson & Co. for a loan.

"The firm, however, refused to lend him the money. I then suggested that he should approach the bank for a loan. The bank, however, refused to lend him the money. "Today, Sir Robert has kindly presented us with his portrait by Sir Oswald Birley, and indeed it would be no exaggeration to describe it as a masterpiece. For the gentleness of the artist has caught the gentleness and dignity of his sitter and transferred a remarkable personality to the canvas.

"As many of you know, Sir Robert's association with Jardine's extends more than 67 years. You have heard today, echoes from the past which were first recounted 12 years ago on an occasion similar to this one, and since the previous happy ceremony, which many of us recall so vividly, much water has passed over the dam.

"But throughout the intervening period, Sir Robert has maintained his keen interest in our firm despite the inroads on his time made by his public spirited activities in the Colony. Thus, I am sure he will permit me to reiterate that this occasion fills me with much pride and gratification.

"I would like to assure Sir Robert that we feel deeply privileged to have his portrait in our Board Room, both as a speaking likeness of an old friend and a symbol of an association which for nearly seven decades has remained tranquil and undisturbed," Mr. Landale concluded.

A PERSISTENT OFFENDER

"Some people have no will to earn an honest living by hard work but think of ways and means of taking advantage of the Law to earn easy money and have a good time," said Mr. Thomas Tam at Central yesterday.

He said this to a 13-year-old boy who was charged before him with hawking without a licence. Sir Robert said that the boy had been to the same court many times before and had been fined on each occasion he had been away and then had been arrested by the police for hawking in the street.

A model of the proposed new Chinese Methodist Church in Kowloon. This afternoon, Mr. J. F. Nicoll, Officer Administering the Government, will perform the ceremony of cutting the first sod.

Methodist Church opening today

Mr. J. F. Nicoll, CMG, Officer Administering the Government, will perform this afternoon the ceremony of cutting the first sod for the new Chinese Methodist Church in Kowloon.

The Chinese Methodist Church in Wanchai was erected in 1936, and an additional church has become necessary. The experiment of placing a church right among the people it is intended to serve has proved so successful that a similar central site has been sought and obtained in Kowloon.

The site is on the hill adjoining the Kowloon Magistracy and overlooks Nathan Road and the Alhambra and Po Hing Theatres.

A comprehensive scheme has been prepared which will make provision for a variety of work for all there will be a church with a seating capacity of 1,000. To this will be attached a Conference Hall seating 120 people, a large Committee Room, Administrative Offices, etc.

Adjoining the Church provision is made for an Elementary Day School. This will contain 12 class rooms with a total seating capacity of 500. There will also be a School Assembly Hall for 500 and various Staff Rooms and Administrative Offices.

Social work

The whole premises will be available in the evenings for various forms of social work for the benefit of the residents in the neighbourhood. The first of these will be a free night school for poorer children which will be staffed by voluntary workers.

The Architect of the scheme is Mr. W. Szeto, B.Sc., A.M. Inst. C.E., A.M.I. Mech. E., A.M.Am. Soc. C.E., Chartered Civil and Mechanical Engineer, who is working in conjunction with Messrs. Mauger and May, F.R.I.B.A., of London. The general style of the buildings is distinctly modern and follows the trends seen in European Continental and American Churches.

This will be in keeping with recent buildings erected in the Colony. The contract for site formation work has been awarded to Messrs. Lun Sang & Co. The total estimated cost of the scheme is $1,500,000. Already $1,150,000 have been subscribed or promised. A great effort is now being launched to raise the balance of $350,000.

Subscriptions will be gladly received by the Treasurer of the scheme, Mr. Peter Cheung, at 25, Des Voeux Road, Central, first floor.

The first school magazine was produced in 1927, and a Golden Jubilee Number in 1937. The file is complete except for 1929, and any old girl who has a copy of this issue is urged to present it to the school.

The Diamond Jubilee Number has many interesting illustrations as well as much reading matter on current doings of the school.

Detective murder case sequel

The Appeal Court yesterday reserved judgment in the appeal of Ko Chan-sum, vegetable gardener, and Chau Hung-sang, former police constable, against the death sentence passed on them for murder.

The two men were sentenced to death by the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. E.H. Williams, at the Criminal Sessions on May 16, for the murder of a Chinese detective, Cheng Man-chuen, at Shek-O on July 9, last year.

The Appeal Court yesterday was composed of the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. T.J. Gould, and the Additional Judge, Mr. A.D. Scholze.

The grounds of appeal were (1) that the trial judge failed to direct the jury to consider the evidence of the accomplice and (2) the trial judge excluded evidence which would have been material to the case.

These were the grounds put forward by the defence, represented by Mr. Percy Chen, instructed by Mr. A.H. Kwok.

Mr. Chen said that the defence was not asking for a new trial, but for a reduction of the sentence to life imprisonment, on the grounds that the evidence of the accomplice was not reliable.

Mr. Chen said that the defence was not asking for a new trial, but for a reduction of the sentence to life imprisonment, on the grounds that the evidence of the accomplice was not reliable.

ILLEGAL ENTRY OF PASSENGERS

Charged with two breaches of the Marine Regulations on Wednesday evening, Chey Kee-chuen, 36-year-old master of junk No. 53HL, was fined a total of $1,000 or six months by Mr. J. Reynolds at Central yesterday.

Chow was charged with allowing passengers to land on the waterfront at Aberdeen on Wednesday evening before the Immigration Authorities had time to check the passengers and with conveying passengers on his Class 3 cargo vessel.

The defendant claimed that his vessel was boarded by pirates while on the way to China, from Hal Nam, and necessity for food and supplies had forced him to go to Aberdeen. He could not stop his passengers from disembarking when they reached Aberdeen.

The passengers of the junk, numbering about 20, were also charged with landing before a check had been made by the Immigration Authorities. Some of them pleaded guilty while others claimed that they had been on the junk at the time of their arrest and that they had no intention of landing.

The Police admitted that some of the passengers did not actually land at Aberdeen.

Mr. Reynolds then remanded their case until today for the Police to make further inquiries.

SIX SUSPECTS RELEASED

Six of the nine men charged with conspiracy to murder Police Detective Li Ku in Un-Long between May 4 and May 11 were discharged from custody by Mr. P. X. d'Almeida at Kowloon yesterday when the prosecution offered no evidence against them.

Those released were Wong Sing, Chung Sing, Li Koon, Wong, Chung Yung-sang, Chau Sheung and Tsui Yung-sap. The remaining three, Wong Sang, Chan Tin-sung and Yeung Yui, will face committal hearing on July 3 and July 5.

Wong Sang and Chan Tin-sung face an additional charge of conspiracy to cause by an explosive substance an explosion of a nature likely to endanger life or cause serious damage to property.

Chief Inspector D. H. Taylor, who applied for the men's release yesterday, is in charge of the prosecution's case.

COMMUNISTS TOLD TO SABOTAGE THE SCHUMAN PLAN

Berlin, June 22. Communist chemical workers in France and Germany were told tonight to hinder production in their respective plants as the first step in the French and East German trade unions' programme for sabotaging the Schuman Plan.

The step was announced by the Central President Board of the Industrial Trade Union of Chemical Workers and reported by ADN, the German news service.

The two unions are the French General Trade Union Association or CGT and the Free German Trade Union League or FDGB, both Communist organisations.

NEW BLACK MARKET IN SHANGHAI

The black market in United States dollars in Shanghai has reappeared after an absence of nearly three months with quotations between 10 and 16 per cent above the official rate, according to recent arrivals here from the North.

Reuters' informants said that the People's Bank of China remained at 35,000 Yen Min Piao for the dollar since early May, although the party deposit unit, which is a sort of living index for the calculation of wages and rental, has dropped nearly 10 per cent during the past few weeks.

There is reported to be quite a demand for United States dollar notes which may be attributed to the Foreign Trade Control Bureau increasing the list of foreign commodities which may be imported with self-provided foreign exchange.

This list now includes six categories of imports: productive materials and equipment; petroleum products; chemical products; metals and hardware; fibre and articles of daily use.

Simultaneously with the reappearance of black market prices, certain luxury goods, such as motor cars, refrigerators and "key money" for apartments, have risen in price.

Although still comparatively low, second-hand cars are now fetching 100 per cent more than a couple of months ago while flats, which were obtainable for US$200 last March, are now available between US$400 and US$700.

But the price upsurge in these has not affected the cost of essential commodities, which remain stable, said these informants.

Paris, June 22. French musicians believe that they have discovered the oldest musical instrument in the world. The Musée de l'Histoire, has received from Indo-China a "lithophone", a stone instrument similar to a xylophone. Experts are attempting to estimate its age, but have no similar instrument to help their studies.—United Press.

Diplomat denies Senator's charges

Washington, June 22. The career diplomat, John Service, swore firmly under oath today that the disloyalty charges made against him are false.

The charges have been made by Republican Senator Joseph McCarthy and Major-General (retired) Patrick Hurley, former United States Ambassador to China.

Mr. Service testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Investigating Sub-Committee. He denied General Hurley's accusations that he tried to "leak" information to the Chinese. He also denied the charge that he had been involved in the Amerasia stolen documents case.

Mr. Service, a 44-year-old diplomat, is completing a re-examination by the State Department of his loyalty and was called before the Senate sub-committee to answer Mr. McCarthy's and General Hurley's charges.

The sub-committee had intended to hear Mr. Service in secret, but Mr. Service pleaded that his testimony be given in the public and Chairman William Tydings agreed.

Mr. Service explained that his wartime contacts with the Chinese Communists were in line with his duties as an American intelligence officer. He had to report on the political situation in China and the Communist movement.

1945 March. General Service, who said he had been in the United States since 1945, said he had been in the United States since 1945.

DEFENCE STEPS IN GERMANY

Frankfurt, June 22. French occupation authorities in Germany officially confirmed tonight that defence preparations, presumably against Russian attack, are being built in Western Europe.

The French made the official disclosure in connection with the port of defence preparations along the Rhine near the famed Lorelei Rock.

"The measures of a military character which are being carried out below the Lorelei are in no way isolated," the official statement said. "They are part of a French but resulted from inter-Allied initiative."

"They are preventive measures resulting from inter-Allied agreement and can be easily noticed at most important points, not only in the German Federal area, but also in France and in other Western European countries."

"These preparations have the character of specific passive defence measures. They are in no way a danger to the population."

The announcement was made in the form of a communiqué issued by the French High Commission.

It described as "nonsense" German fears that defence measures below the Lorelei indicated Allied plans to blow up the rock.

Communist agitators have been trying to convince West Germans that Allied bombing of the rock would block the Rhine and inundate Rhine Valley towns in case of war.

In connection with the French announcement, Allied officials in Frankfurt stressed that there is no indication that the West fears any immediate Soviet attack.

The defence preparations were interpreted as part of the general preparation of the Western European Military Union to avoid a Pearl Harbour.—Associated Press.

Britain being kept informed

Liaison machinery for keeping Britain informed of developments at the six-nation conference in Paris, Mr. W. G. Hayter, and to Mr. Eric Roll, a member of the British delegation to the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation.

The heads of the six national delegations to the conference now in its third day—are expected to state their views today on the pooling plan outlined by its author, M. Jean Monnet, in a two-hour speech at the Foreign Office yesterday.

After hearing their statements the French will submit a revised draft of the working documents of the scheme as a basis for further talks.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that the French draft would include the organisation of a supra-national authority under which the pooling scheme for international coal and steel production among the six nations would operate.—United Press and Reuters.

Meanwhile, in London, the Labour Government tonight asked the House of Commons to approve its handling of the French invitation to join the European talks on the pooling of the coal and steel industries.

It challenged a Conservative-Liberal motion calling for Britain's participation in the Paris talks on the Schuman Plan with an amendment.

This asks Parliament to approve the declared readiness of the British Government to take a constructive part in the conversations, with the hope that they may be able to join in, or associate themselves with, this common effort.

The amendment, which amounts to a demand for a vote of confidence in the Government's attitude, will make the resolution read that the House:

"Welcomes the initiative of the French Foreign Minister on May 9, and while recognising that it was not possible for the British Government to take part in the international consideration of his proposals on terms which committed them in advance of such consideration to pool the production of coal and steel, and to institute a new high authority whose decisions would bind the Governments concerned."

"Approves the declared readiness of the British Government to take a constructive part in the conversations with the hope that they may be able to join in, or associate themselves with, this common effort."

The amendment is in the names of the Rt. Hon. Mr. Clement Attlee, the Deputy Prime Minister, Mr. Herbert Morrison, the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stafford Cripps, the Fuel and Power Minister, Mr. P. J. Noel-Baker, and Mr. George Strauss.

It will be moved in Parliament on Monday by Sir Stafford Cripps who will be the first speaker in the crucial debate on the Schuman Plan, which is due to reach a climax in a vote on Tuesday evening.

The plan calls for the establishment of "action committees" in the chemical plants of both nations.

"It is to be the duty and task of each chemical worker to prevent the production of chemicals for war purposes," said the announcement, which also appealed to workers to refuse to handle or ship war products.

The general trade union agreement was announced on Tuesday following a meeting in the Russian sector of Berlin of representatives from French and East German unions.

The agreement outlined as its major task opposition to the Schuman Plan, which would integrate major industries of the West European nations.

Today's announcement also charged that poison gases and rocket fuel were being manufactured in Western Germany and demanded that the Allied High Commissions halt this production.

Meanwhile, in London, the Labour Government tonight asked the House of Commons to approve its handling of the French invitation to join the European talks on the pooling of the coal and steel industries.

It challenged a Conservative-Liberal motion calling for Britain's participation in the Paris talks on the Schuman Plan with an amendment.

CHURCH-STATE DISPUTE IN HUNGARY OVER

Budapest, June 22. Roman Catholic bishops in Hungary have surrendered to the Communist Government, and the regime reported today that it was ready to make peace with the Church.

Informed sources said the Government, almost certainly would demand that the Bishops take an oath of allegiance to the new Hungarian Constitution.

The heads of other denominations have already taken such an oath, but the Roman Catholic Bishops refused it.

The Government announced on Wednesday night that the Bench of Bishops, the highest Church authority in predominantly Catholic Hungary, had agreed to negotiate with the Government toward ending their struggle.

The years-long dispute was highlighted by the trial and imprisonment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, and the nationalisation of Church schools.

Informed sources said the fact that the Government made the announcement indicated it was willing to accept the surrender of the Bishops and negotiate a peace.

The announcement said the Government received a request for a Government-Church conference on questions concerning the Church from Archbishop Joseph Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, and the nationalisation of Church schools.

The Bishops apparently gave in under the internal Government campaign of the last few weeks. Mindszenty and his colleagues on about 100,000 and they were obliged to leave behind precious libraries, furnishings and other Church effects.

The Government denied requests that monks and nuns were sent to internment camps. It pronounced that members of religious orders were transferred to other religious centres such as the Benedictine monastery of the Holy Spirit in Budapest.

At the Holy Spirit monastery, the population is over 1,000. Many Catholics are also in the monastery, and the Government said it was ready to negotiate a peace.

BLACK WATCH MAN RELEASED

Bad Oeynhausen, June 22. The British Army today failed to confirm the death sentence imposed on Private Gordon Linsell, Black Watch soldier, who shot a German policeman and ordered Linsell's release from jail.

An officer from Headquarters of the British Army of the Rhine made the following statement: "The Commander-in-Chief has said that the release of Linsell does not confirm the findings of the court-martial. There were also other aspects which arose in the proceedings which the Commander-in-Chief has taken into account."

The court-martial was held in the result of Linsell's refusal to accept the death sentence imposed on him by the court-martial.

The announcement said the Government received a request for a Government-Church conference on questions concerning the Church from Archbishop Joseph Mindszenty, Primate of Hungary, and the nationalisation of Church schools.

TEN YEAR OLD MOTHER

Orange, New Jersey, June 22. A 10-year-old girl gave birth to a boy, the first time in the history of the Orange Hospital where she was doing nicely and declined to reveal her name or the name of the hospital where the baby was born yesterday.

The mother, who is the youngest ever to have given birth, was born yesterday.

Suspected sabotage case in submarine

London, June 22. The Admiralty tonight stated that there was a case of suspected sabotage in the submarine Tally Ho, now undergoing a refit at Devonport Dockyard.

"The submarine is one of those in reserve. Investigations are proceeding," the Admiralty statement added.

It was understood that sand had been found in a vital part of the vessel.

HMS Tally Ho is a 1,575-ton patrol type submarine of the same class as Truculent, sunk in the Thames Estuary with heavy loss of life after being in a collision with the Swedish vessel, Diving, which sank this year.

In 1955, Tally Ho completed a 61,000-mile patrol in the Pacific, where she sank 21 Japanese ships, including a submarine, a submarine chaser and a cruiser.

This is the fourth case of suspected sabotage in a Royal Navy ship in the past 18 months.—Reuters.

KMT guerillas wiped up along Southern border

Langson, June 20. (delayed) Reliable military sources reported today that organised Nationalist guerilla resistance to Chinese Communist armies has collapsed in the region along the South China border.

General Chow Wei, leading Nationalist guerilla leader, fled across the Indo-China border at a point 50 miles South East of Langson on April 15.

With 80 of his men who accompanied him, the former Nationalist commander of the frontier zone is being held in a French internment camp for Nationalist troops at Muong Duong, 90 miles East of Hanoi.

Chow Wei's forces and other Nationalist guerilla units, dispersed when regular Communist troops executed a large-scale and systematic mop-up of the Kwangtung frontier region in early April. Chow Wei commanded a well-organised force of 3,000 guerillas and maintained radio contacts with Nationalist headquarters in Taiwan.

Reports are filtering into North Indo-China of continued Nationalist guerilla resistance in Central Kwangtung. But the several thousand guerilla dissidents still operating in this frontier zone are only unorganised bands or scattered peasants.

The greatest problem facing Communist administrators arriving from the North for the take over from local Communist leaders is that of peasant unrest. The peasantry are stubbornly resisting the heavy tax levies.

In general, the Communists are said to be making satisfactory progress in the Kwangtung-Kwangsi frontier zone. An economic, political and administrative machine is being formed, and local Communist guerillas are being reorganised into regular units.

Weekend point. Both Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces come under General Lin, Hsiao's South East China Command. General Liu Po-cheng's troops transferred from that region during February-March to South West China.

The focus of Communist headquarters along the Indo-China-South China border region is now Yunnan Province. General Cheng Keng arrived at the Yunnan provincial capital of Kunming in early March, to begin the pacification and administrative reorganisation of that sprawling province. Functioning under Liu Po-cheng's South West China headquarters at Chungking is the turnover Governor, Lu Han.

Chungking's most pressing problem is the pacification of some 10,000 Nationalist troops scattered in the Szechuan-Sichuan-Yunnan border region. They are the remnant units of Hu Tsung-shan's former army.

The Chinese Communists, for the present, control only Yunnan's main centres and lines of communications. The province is overrun with dissident independent guerilla units of every kind, including an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 operating near the Indo-China border.

There is only a handful of regular Communist troops along the Indo-China border in Yunnan Province.—Associated Press.

TALKS ON COLONIES

Washington, June 22. Officials said today that United States and British representatives will meet in Washington on July 5 in an effort to co-ordinate Anglo-American views on the development of colonial areas.

The U.S. will probably hold similar separate meetings later with France and Belgium.

It is understood that the Anglo-American meeting will concentrate on Africa to guard against Communist penetration.

The meetings were decided on at the London Big Three meeting in May in order that the big powers might present more united views in United Nations debates.

Officials feel that past differences among the Western powers in the United Nations has played into Russian hands, and become a powerful propaganda weapon.

Generally the U.S. has been pushing for independence and self-government in dependent areas faster than Britain, France and Belgium have been willing to do.

The British, it is reported, feel that the meetings in Washington offer an opportunity to present facts which they believe Americans do not take into account sufficiently.—Associated Press.

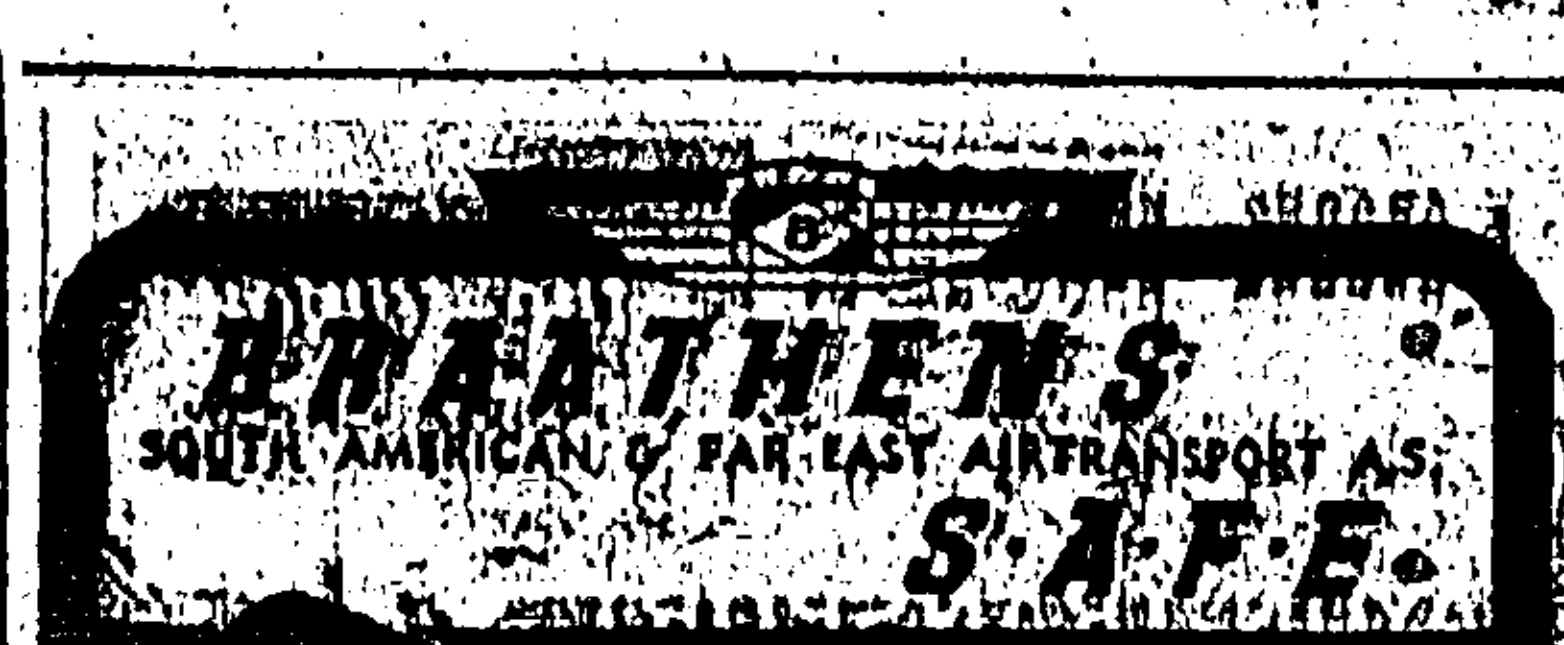

GRAVE PLIGHT OF PENSIONERS

Amiecent Government pensioners in Shanghai are in a serious plight as a result of the non-receipt of cheques for the thirteenth month. It was learned from private sources in Hong Kong.

The pensioners are said to have called Washington through the British Consulate-General in Shanghai.

Aside from a score of war veterans, most of the pensioners are either retired military officers or the Chinese wives of American ex-Servicemen. Their individual pensions range from US$10 to US$40 a month.

Pension cheques ceased suddenly following the Communist occupation of Shanghai in May last year, but the United States Consulate-General used to help out desperate cases with loans.

Plexeal sheet ideal material for car gaskets

In the past 20 years a number of alternatives have been offered to the once universally accepted copper and asbestos type of gasket used for cylinder heads, exhaust manifolds and other places where there is a combination of high temperature and pressure.

The "C and A" gasket continues, of course, to hold its place, but both manufacturers and repairers can and do use a specially treated fabric and also laminated steel.

Plexeal sheet consists of aluminium laminates with inter-layers of synthetic resin and the material is produced in a special machine which rolls out aluminium sheets of almost foil thickness (in fact each sheet measures .0015 in.) and simultaneously applies the plastic inter-layer.

Each of the materials performs a specific function for when the complete shaped gasket is put into an engine the pressure transferred from the holding-down bolts to the plastic inter-layers results in the plastic being squeezed out of the edges, after which high temperature bakes the material and thus a perfect sealing ring is, so to speak, manufactured in situ.

The aluminium provides the required physical strength and although the principle could be used with other metals aluminium has two special virtues, one in respect of application and the other in respect of performance. Provided the garage has a stock of Plexeal sheet on the premises any new gasket can be produced within an hour or so with an immense saving in time and cost.

It should, in particular, be noted that complete economy of material can be achieved by using the circle removed when cutting out a cylinder bore for the purpose of making up, say, the gasket between the exhaust manifold and pipe and other similar small drawings.

Convincing proof

The practical advantages and convenience of Plexeal sheet cannot, in fact, be questioned, but there may be some who will doubt whether satisfactory joints can be made in such an apparently rough and ready manner. The experiences have some bearing on this point, particularly in respect of exhaust manifold joints on the 1914 Prince Henry Vauxhall, which have always proved unsatisfactory during his ownership of the car. This has been due in part to warping of the manifold during the course of 34 years' hard work, and in part to the somewhat meagre studding which attaches the manifold to the cylinder block.

Moreover, the original design provided for recess floating sealing rings which are now no longer obtainable and all efforts to provide substitutes for them made from the more normal jointing compound had, until June, 1948, proved in vain. At this time Plexeal sheet joints were made up and from that time forward there has been no trace of a leak. This success should be construed in the light of the fact that no fewer than seven attempts to seal this manifold had previously been made and is explained by the ability of the material to accommodate itself to varying thicknesses.

What happens is that when two faces are not true one with another local high pressure displaces the plastic inter-layer, which then flows so as to fill up a region of lower pressure caused by greater clearance.

Thus encouraged, Plexeal sheet was used for all the cylinder heads and manifold joints on the Triumph 1800 Roadster and a point immediately observed was that the change to Plexeal sheet eliminated the running-up tendency characteristic of this as of the majority of post-war British cars when running on low grade Pool petrol.

Improved heat transfer

Experiments on racing cars have confirmed this effect which points to the value of a light alloy gasket in providing improved heat transfer from the head to the block and, hence, a cooler running combustion chamber.

Plexeal sheet is a thoroughly proved material having been made in large quantities on the Continent in the past few years, and Plexeal, Ltd., who market the sheet in England, have appointed Messrs. William Clark (Spare Parts), Ltd., to distribute the material to factors and garages.

Record output

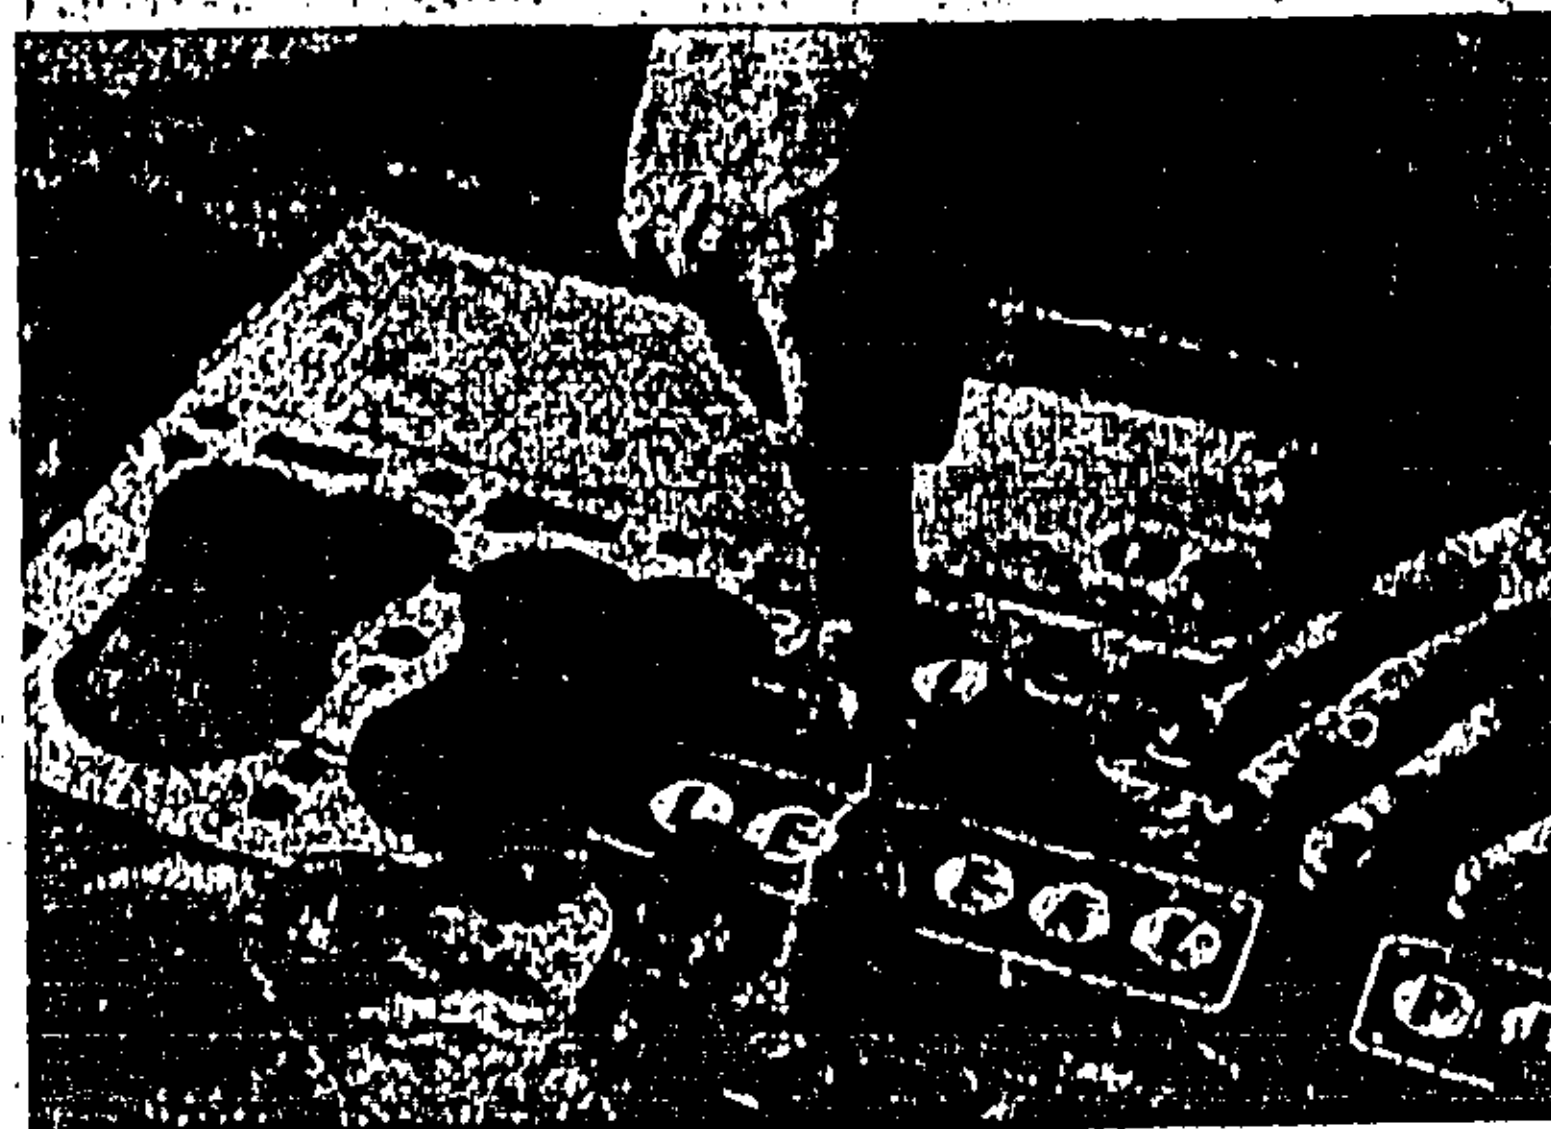

Acknowledging the great efforts made by the steel industry, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders announced that last year the record total of 412,260 cars were produced in the U.K.

The industry, still the nation's greatest exporter, shipped 258,000 cars overseas during 1949 and exceeded the export demand set by the Government.

During 1950 it is hoped that 450,000 cars will be produced, but it will be recalled that the Government have announced their intention to reduce the car home quota for 1950 to 110,000 vehicles, which is well below the 1949 rate.

The number of cars sent to export markets during 1949 was as follows:—

Australia	84,070
Canada	31,213
Union of South Africa	18,584
Belgium	11,028
New Zealand	11,553
Brazil	7,882
Irish Republic	7,183
United States of America	6,716
Netherlands	6,376
Switzerland	5,285
Others	66,832
Total	257,922

It is a particular feature of the new gasket material that it may be readily cut by hand, thus eliminating any difficulty in providing special gaskets for out-of-the-ordinary motor cars.

Restrictions on weights of motor vehicles

Restrictions have been placed on the weights of motor vehicles, laden and unladen, using roads in specific parts of the Colony. The restrictions were included in new amendments to the Vehicles and Road Traffic Ordinance.

The maximum weights fixed by the amendments and the areas affected are:

Maximum weight if vehicle is fitted with pneumatic tyres: 12 tons (in Victoria City); five tons (on island outside Victoria City); 10 tons (Kowloon and New Kowloon); five tons (New Territories).

Maximum weight if vehicle is fitted with solid tyres: seven tons (Victoria City); five tons (on island outside Victoria City); five tons (Kowloon and New Kowloon); prohibited (New Territories).

These amended regulations do not apply to motor omnibuses. Other amendments govern the total weight laden and complete for service of vehicles. This weight shall not exceed 12 tons in Victoria City and 10 tons in Kowloon; five tons on the island outside Victoria City and in the New Territories.

The weight on any one axle shall not exceed 9½ tons in Victoria City and six tons in Kowloon.

In calculating the total weight laden, the weight of each passenger, of the driver and of the conductor shall be regarded as 100 pounds.

AMENDMENT OF TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

The onus of satisfying the Court that a car owner was not aware that his vehicle was being used for hire has been placed on the owner, according to amendments to the Vehicle and Road Traffic Regulations.

An additional clause in the Ordinance states: "In proceedings under this regulation against a licensee for allowing his private vehicle to be used for the purpose of hire, the onus shall be upon the licensee to satisfy the Court that he was not aware and had no reasonable ground for believing that his vehicle was being used for the purpose of hire."

Protection against burst tyres

British motorists need no longer run the risk of danger from burst tyres, following the production of the Lifeguard, a new type of inner tube.

Invented and perfected by the Goodyear Tyre and Rubber Company, it is now produced at their Wolverhampton factory in all sizes for all modern motorcars.

The Lifeguard is a double inner tube, the outside of which is a normal rubber air chamber. Inside of the rubber tube, however, is another two-ply inner tube of rubber-impregnated fabric.

Hitherto, since the beginning of motoring, when a burst occurred, the vehicle dropped the depth of the tyre on to the wheel rim and with the increase in size of present-day tyres and proportionate decrease in the diameter of the wheel, this sudden drop has increased from two inches to the present-day six inches and even nine inches in extreme cases.

With Lifeguards, when a burst occurs all that is torn open is the outer casing and the rubber inner tube. The vehicle then runs along on the two-ply rubber-impregnated fabric inner tube.

The car can be run on this tyre-within-a-tyre for at least two miles, with the air slowly seeping from safety vents until it is stopped as with a puncture.

The cost of this tyre-within-a-tyre is approximately four times that of the normal inner tube. They are so strongly constructed, however, that with normal care they will outlast the outer casing.

New U.S. sunshine roof

A new type of sunshine roof for cars has been patented in the United States. Until now, there has been no U.S. equivalent of the British sliding roof, but the new invention relies on a different principle.

The roof consists of two or more transparent layers of a plastic material with space between them. When the spaces are empty the roof is, in effect, a large window.

When the sunlight becomes too strong, liquids are passed into the space to provide anything from slight opaqueness to a complete black-out.

Heat absorption and reflection are also controlled. Indian ink, it has been found, will shut out sunlight but will absorb heat and help to keep the interior of the car warm.

Non-opaque blue liquids allow most of the light to pass through, but block out undesirable actinic rays.

The inventor claims that the sunshine roof can be adapted for use on buildings as well.

NEHRU MAKES ATTACK ON COMMUNISTS

Rangoon, June 22.

India's Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, charged today that Indian Communists are attempting to "destroy our country and our younger generation."

Mr. Nehru said the Reds in India were busily arming "strong arm" gangs, thinking it would benefit them when the next war comes but instead they are destroying their own country in the process.

The Indian leader was on the way home from a visit to Indonesia. He also advocated joint India-Burma action for economic consolidation of the two neighbouring countries.

Mr. Nehru told a Burmese audience "If you think you are your newly-found freedom challenge anybody, you are mistaken."

The veteran statesman told some 32,000 listeners gathered in Rangoon's Athletic Stadium that those who go about challenging others will be knocked down.

"This is a ruthless, cruel world," Mr. Nehru said, "showing no pity for the weak."

Mr. Nehru criticized the fallacy of supposing that independence gives nations the "right to do as they wish" declaring that freedom in itself did not make them strong. He advised the newly independent peoples to proceed cautiously in building up their strength.

At a Press conference, Mr. Nehru said of the Burmese Premier, Thakin Nu, "At any time and more especially at a time of difficulty and crisis, it is more important to have a man at the head of affairs who is well known to be perfectly straight, perfectly above-board and a person who would not give up his strength."

Italian Red attack on Titoism

Rome, June 22.

An independent Roman newspaper claimed today that the Italian Communist Party, concerned at defections in its ranks, has ordered an all-out attack on Titoism.

The newspaper, "Il Momento," published what it said was a secret circular issued by the Rome Communist headquarters calling for the drive against party supporters of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia. The reported circular, dated March 30, 1950, was entitled "Campaign Against Titoism," according to the newspaper. The opening paragraph asserted that the Tito "clique" had intensified its "propaganda" and "espionage" against the Italian Democratic movement.

The newspaper's text of the circular outlined in detail the anti-Tito campaign to be followed by Communist cells and all echelons of the Party.

It said: "It is necessary to open a vast propaganda campaign against Titoism too unmask its Trotsky ideology and its role as an agent of American imperialism."

The circular concluded with an admonition to Italian Communist leaders to give to all "military members a better consciousness of the treason of Tito and a spirit of vigilance against the infiltration of Tito agents." Associated Press.

France facing a major crisis

Paris, June 22.

Premier Georges Bidault's eight-month-old Right of Centre government today suffered a smashing defeat in the National Assembly that faced France once again with the threat of a major political crisis.

Although today's Assembly vote on the increase of civil servants' salaries was not a confidence issue, M. Bidault announced immediately that he would try to block it by invoking a law passed last year fixing maximum expenditures in 1950. He would treat this as a formal confidence issue on which his Government would stand or fall. The confidence vote will be taken at 8.30 a.m. on Saturday.

M. Bidault tonight asked for the vote of confidence after the Assembly had, adopted, against Government opposition, a Socialist proposal for increasing the salaries of State employees.

The Finance Minister, M. Maurice Petech, declared that the proposal was contrary to the law passed last January fixing the maximum figures for this year's budget estimates, and M. Bidault asked the House, as a matter of confidence, to accept this ruling.

The Socialist proposal had been adopted by 351 votes (Socialists, Communists and Gaullists) to 201 (Popular Republicans and Radicals) after M. Bidault had strongly opposed to the Assembly to reject it.

"If this proposal is adopted it will mortgage the 1951 budget, which we have not the right to do," M. Bidault said. "There are claims of all kinds, by Civil Servants, farmers, middle classes, etc. These claims are often justified, but the Government's duty is to say what is possible."

"The balance of the budget is the condition of economic and social stability and improvement," M. Bidault concluded. "It was vigorously applauded by Popular Republican, Radical and Moderate deputies."

The Socialist spokesman, M. Charles Lussy, said that his group would not accept the Government argument and that the Socialist proposal corresponded to promises made by the Government to State employees a year ago. United Press and Reuter.

Study of facts

Answering questions on a variety of subjects, including Marxist Communism in South East Asia, India's non-recognition of Bao Dai and nationalisation of industries, Pandit Nehru made the following points:

His work "Glimpses Of World History" was not a Marxist analysis of history. Instead of indulging in academic discussions on abstract subjects like Socialism and Communism it was better for nations to consider the facts before them and seek appropriate remedies which will differ from area to area.

As regards nationalisation of industries a country must give priority to the most urgent schemes within its financial and other resources.

It might be done by expropriation or payment of compensation.

Expropriation, besides leading to conflicts which retarded the wealth-producing capacity of a nation at least for the present, actually cost much more than paying reasonable compensation. Further as in Germany, when two sections are in conflict, a third force, like the Hitler machine, might emerge and wipe out the contending parties.

Condemnation of terrorism

In India they had introduced a system of priority in respect of several projects they had under contemplation.

On Hyderabad, Pandit Nehru said that the police action there was as peaceful as a police action could be and prevented large-scale violence going on there.

He condemned terrorism and said that wherever Communism had opposed nationalism in South East Asia it had weakened itself but where it went hand in hand with nationalism it had gained in strength.

As regards non-recognition of India of the Bao Dai Government, Pandit Nehru explained that India wanted to keep away from the internal conflicts of Indo-China and thus throw whatever it had on the side of peace and not on the side of war.

He felt that the next war, when it came, would be a catastrophic that for generations the productive capacity of the world would go down completely and humanity would be brutalised as it had never been brutalised before.

Referring to freedom of the Press in India, Pandit Nehru cited the recent decision of the Supreme Court which reversed the action of provincial governments and upheld the freedom of the Press.

Pandit Nehru relieved the tension of his two-hour questioning by correspondents when, to one of them who asked "Are you an enigma and do you suffer internal conflicts?" he replied, "A person who is free from internal conflicts is a lunatic." Associated Press and Reuter.

DON IDDON'S DIARY

Funeral now celebration

Where are the mournful morticians now? I mean the assorted pallbearers, undertakers, wreath-givers, and dust-scatterers who were burying Britain just a few months ago.

They are, of course, speeding round the countryside on unrationed petrol, eating unrationed food, and sending unrationed dispatches to American newspapers about the return of Merrie England.

The funeral has turned into a celebration, and the corpse is doing a jig. Under the heavy influence of high octane gasoline the gravediggers are waving their spades in the air and cheering the "phenomenal comeback" of the island that was worn out, vindicated, and ready for the headlines.

The United States would be grateful for some explanation. How come that we can afford to drive motor-cars again, eat our fill, and tear up ration coupons?

Explain, please

The impression had been given that we were doomed to the wheelbarrow and the bicycle, the sawdust sausage and the egg-powder, and now the startling news that the British are tanking up and taking trips.

Mr. Atlee should make a statement and prove that it's not all propaganda. Otherwise the Americans may remain unconvinced. Although even here there are signs that Britain is moving back into her place in the sun.

The pound sterling, that had dropped on the free market to two dollars and 30 cents and could be bought on the water-front at a mere two dollars, has rallied and climbed to two dollars and 60 cents for £1 at a Fifth-avenue travel agency the other day, and the clerk whispered that if I didn't buy now I would have to pay more later.

Our pound notes are no longer regarded as so much wallpaper. We are back in the money and opening up the mint. I await the day when we shall be sending bundles for America and floating loans for Washington. That day I shall crow until I am hoarse.

Passing rich

By a strange coincidence, our return to the chips comes at a time when our friends are becoming rich. The passing of the dollar millionaire.

It seems that the American rich are vanishing. They lost their town houses long ago, and now their yachts, their fleets of cars, their Long Island mansions, their jewels, and their furs are in lock.

Mr. John McClellan, an accurate columnist-historian says: "The American millionaire is doomed to extinction. The simple fact is that nobody can possibly make enough money to live according to the old standard any more."

So the butlers are being bounced, the footmen and foreign chefs fired, and the gold plate pawned.

Even Wall-street is running articles about itself entitled "The Twilight of Wall-street," or preparing a comic newspaper called "The Bawl Street Journal," kidding the big money era and advertising outings with free hot-dogs for hungry brokers.

This is a healthy sign of a robust sense of humour.

As the rich take out the dust covers, the mechanics move in. Mr. Walter Reuther, the motor-car workers' union leader whom I wrote about from Detroit, has just pulled off a five-year contract for his followers.

Volvo put them on a par with the Ford family.

The automobile workers get more comforts than the General Motors Company claims to, put into the customers' car.

Luxury workers

Every one is given a high-gloss finish, maximum steering ease, and springs that guarantee easy riding over the bumps.

Both sides have agreed that if it is possible to turn out a car that will run without any trouble for five years it should be possible to turn out a motor-car worker who will do the same.

Reuther rejoices and Detroit dances in the streets. I will not be too flippant.

What has happened is that General Motors has made a colossal bet that the United States will enjoy uninterrupted prosperity for at least the next five years.

And the penetrating eyes of President Truman have noted this. The President, who has made conquests of the farmers and the labour unions, has a new romance—the business man.

His Cabinet are blowing kisses at the industrialist and sending him notes and billets-doux to the counsellor-house-keepers. Harry reveals that he has been wild about them all the time and can't wait to send flowers.

While he is sending his representative, Leon Keyserling, of the Council of Economic Advisors, this plump and pleasing professor is dazzling the captains of commerce, and they will be on their way to the altar if they don't look out.

If this happens the Republicans, or arch-Tories, can pack up politics and start peddling pencils. They will be finished, and the triumphant Democrats will be in power for perpetuity.

One tip-off will be the result of the election for the Governorship of California. Out there in the Wild West, James Roosevelt, balding son of the late President, is running against Earl Warren, who's been Governor for seven years and tried for the vice-presidency in 1948 as Thomas Dewey's mate.

The voting is not until November, but the campaign rages hot and angry now, and even Hollywood has joined in.

Cheers for Lie

After young Roosevelt and the handsome Warren, the United Nations' Trygve Lie is the most-discussed political personality hereabouts.

Mr. Lie, not too popular in the past because of his high-handed belligerence among the peace-makers, is getting cheers for his mission to Moscow. He says: "Half the cold war or face a hot one."

Over the long holiday weekend Americans, basking in the sunshine, only hoped that Lie knows what he is doing.

With eagerness they have been turning to other topics. To the visit of Lord Woolton, who says: "I am here to sing Britain's praises, to shout loudly for Britain rather than to apologise or talk as though we are a second-rate Power." You and I, Lord Woolton.

Elder statesman Bernard Baruch, who, when asked, "How can I keep free of fear?" replied: "First keep your wits and financial demands below what you earn; and, second, try to get the Government to do the same thing."

Talk of the town also revolves around an offensive article in Look magazine entitled "Why the U.S. and Canada should be one country" and giving Britain the brush-off. The author is George Shea, junior. Shame on Shea—so very junior.

Latest in fashions are man-trap hats as big as cartwheels and as seductive to the imagination as flying saucers. A new textile fibre called orlon, due to succeed nylon—softer, more durable. Remember it—orlon; but don't ask me to send you some.

Where Reds lead

Fashion experts say before a woman throws herself at a man she usually takes careful aim.

Heard around town: Russia may not be ahead of Britain and America in atom bombs, but she is certainly far out in front in atom bomb spies.

That wonderful tribute of Claire Boothe Luce to Mrs. Roosevelt: "No woman has ever so comforted the distressed or so distressed the comfortable."

Well, this winds up the diary for a few weeks, as I'm going on holiday—not to England, unfortunately, but to Bermuda.

Footnote—This is Don Iddon saying au revoir to all of you, and that includes the fellow reading over your shoulder.

Free nations must throw everything into fight

New York, June 22.

The ECA Administrator, Paul Hoffman, sees no chance of enduring peace unless all free nations throw all their resources—material, intellectual and spiritual—into the fight.

MOVE FOR ISLAMIC BODY

Karachi, June 22.

A movement to form a Pan-Islamic political organisation has been started by a group of internationally-minded Moslems led by Chaudhri Khalikuzzaman, President of the Pakistan Muslim League.

He recently toured the Middle East and Britain to test reaction to the idea of "Islamism."

A 600 word circular, addressed to leading citizens of all Muslim countries, has suggested that a conference be called in Damascus, Cairo or Karachi under the Presidency of Emir Abdel Krim, the North African Riff leader.

It is understood here that the sponsors of the conference include citizens of several Moslem countries.

Their pamphlet says: "The time has come when representatives of public opinion in Moslem majority areas and countries should meet together to discuss problems and consider whether a political organisation of the people of Islamism should be established to express its common opinion on vital issues affecting Moslems of the world from time to time."

Among problems mentioned in the circular are Israel, Kashmir and Moslem areas under foreign rule.

A solution to present-day problems, the circular suggested, lay in reconstructing society on an Islamic pattern.

No date is suggested for the proposed conference but a usually well-informed source said that if the movement found support it would probably be held early next year. Reuter.

In a speech to the United Textile Workers of America, Mr. Hoffman emphasised that the European countries must export to the United States and said that textile imports would not greatly damage American industry.

Pointing out that European trade had approached balance in recent years because of Marshall Plan aid, Mr. Hoffman added: "This situation, however, is not a healthy one. If the relationship of free people is to be on a sound basis, it must be on a business basis."

As long as we are giving aid and others are receiving aid, there will be annoyances and tensions. These annoyances and tensions will automatically evaporate if we can put our relationship on a cash on the barrel-head basis, with Europe paying us for what she needs."

Saying that Europe must earn a billion more and buy a billion less to balance her trade, he continued:

"I do not wish to give the impression that all of the problems of Western Europe will be solved when the dollar gap is closed. Such is not the case."

Closer union

"Fundamentally, there must be a closer union of the free nations of Europe, both politically and economically. They can't get along free and become strong only if they draw together and work together."

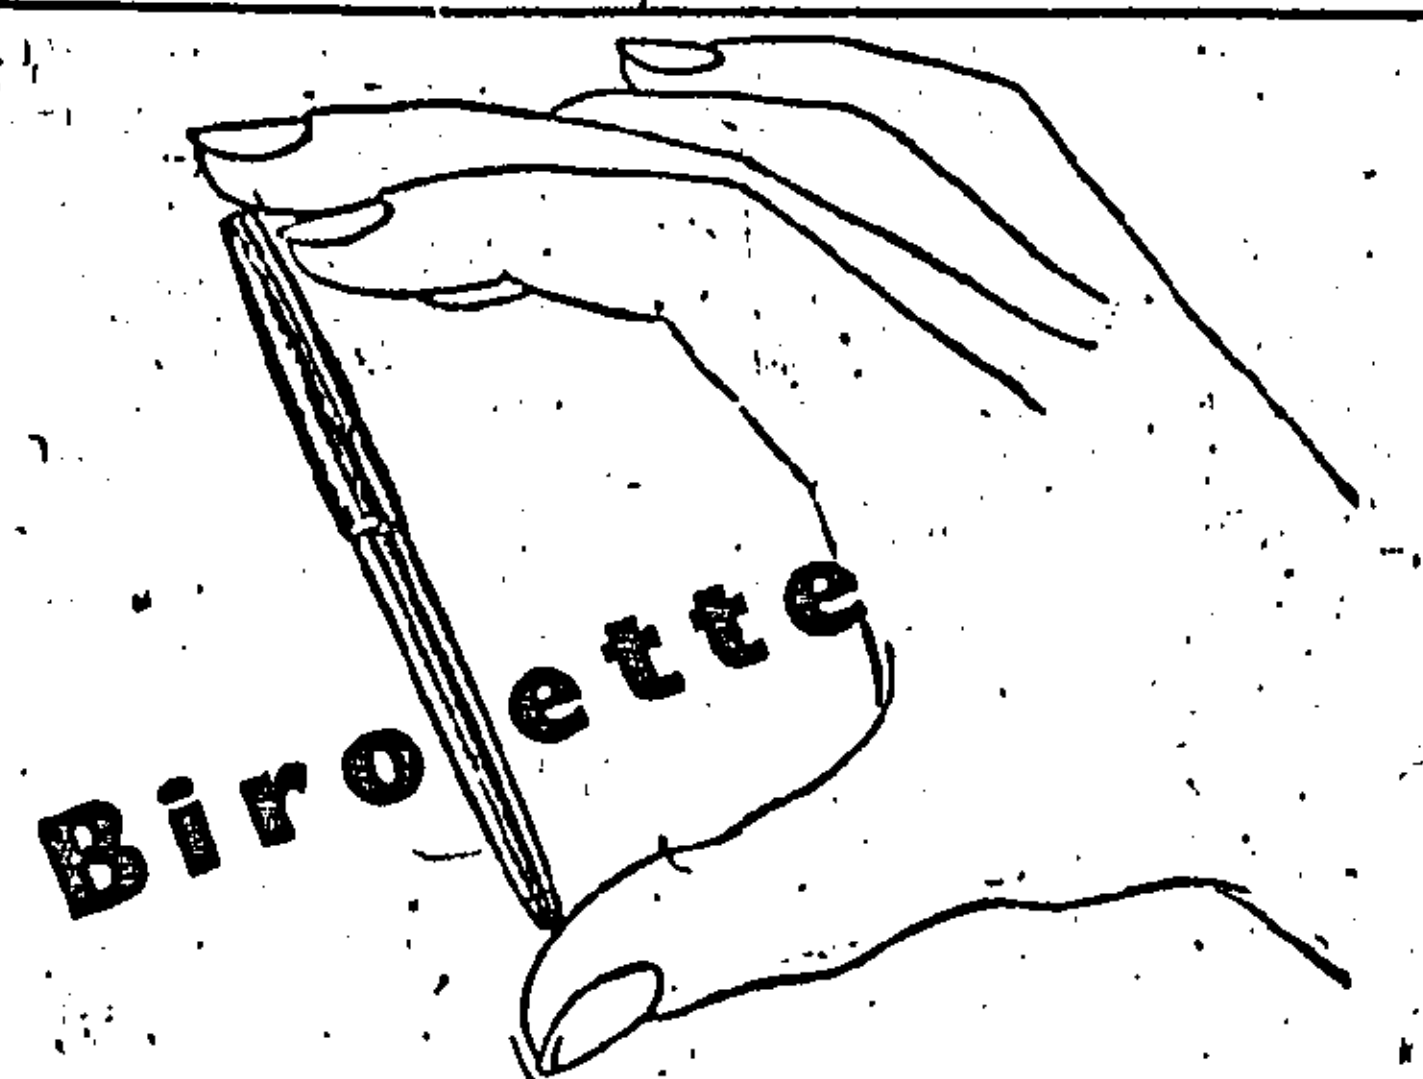

Answering criticism that increased European textile exports to the United States would injure United States industry and evoke unemployment, Mr. Hoffman said: "I do not think we can meet the problem of unemployment in the textile industry of the United States by stopping this comparatively modest volume of imports from Western Europe."

The Administrator also reported: "Our economists estimate that the European nations may be able to increase their exports to the United States of all kinds of yarns, textiles and textile manufactures from US$110,000,000 in 1949 to $150,000,000-180,000,000 in 1953.

"How much of this additional 40-50 million dollars represents goods directly competitive, I do not know. Part of it probably represents sales which otherwise would not be made by anyone."

He pointed out that this increase compared with a total United States textile production of about $12,000,000,000—United Press.

Romulo's appeal to the West for understanding

Cambridge, Massachusetts, June 22.
General Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine Foreign Minister, appealed today for co-operation between the Eastern and Western powers on the basis of equality and mutual respect as well as understanding of each other's problems. He told the Harvard Alumni Association that the prime requisite for Western policy towards Asia is to see Asia through Asian eyes.

"You cannot prepare a policy mould for Europe and assume it will do for Asia too. Nor can you do one thing in Asia then promptly cancel that by doing something else in Europe. There must be judicious adaptation of methods and parallel planning that will avoid confusion and waste."

He recalled that the Baguio conference agreed that any decisions made about the future of Asia and its peoples must consider the point of view of the peoples themselves. They claimed this for themselves as an inalienable right and for the Western peoples it was a timely word of caution. If respected, would surely bring achievement of their own legitimate objectives. There had been a number of assumptions regarding Asia, which should be put aside in the interests of better understanding, one being that the Asian peoples preferred the Western type democracy.

He recalled that the Asian people had long rested on a solid authoritarian base heavily overgrown with custom, tradition and ritual.

"The appeal of democracy as we of the free world understand the term is not by any means general in Asia, therefore the missionary zeal with which its advantages are broadcast to Asia must rest on faith plus something else—none other than good works."

No special attractions
"To peoples who have known little or no freedom for centuries and who lived uncounted ages in a state of poverty and hunger, the high shine and polish which our propaganda has given democracy can hold no special attractions. They will judge political and economic systems only in terms of having a concrete bearing on their daily lives—first what they do with freedom movements among the still subject peoples; second what they are disposed to do to help raise the Asian living standards."

He asked the West to reconsider its tendency to consider any nationalist movement in Asia as Communist. He admitted that some unquestionably were Communist-led but the "politically sly" and "ruthless Communists" often took control from the "timid and confused liberals" lacking prompt and effective support from their Western friends.

"We lose battles this way by default and will continue losing them until we cease condemning"

all these movements is discriminatory."

New outlook
General Romulo asked the Western world to take a hint from a new outlook in many Asian countries, namely, insistence not to take part in the cold war, not to be drawn into military alliances nor aggravate the present dangerous international tension.

Their desire to stand aloof stemmed not so much from the distrust of two embattled sides as from the hope that their own peaceful inclinations and total dissociation from the explosive cold war issues might help pave the way towards mutual accommodation and co-existence.

Asia could at a moment's notice become the theatre for a war of annihilation but could also provide wisdom that would illuminate the road to enduring peace.

Alabama objects to rulings

Montgomery, June 22.
Both Houses of the Alabama Legislature today denounced recent United States Supreme Court decisions against segregation of Negroes as a threat to "Southern civilisation".

Without a dissenting vote, they passed two resolutions, one declaring "We will not submit to the intermingling of White and Negro children in our public schools".

"The way of life of the Southern people, civilisation itself as we know it in the South, peace and goodwill between White and Negro races" depend on segregation, the Legislature resolved.

Condemning continuous efforts by the Courts, the President and Congress to force intermingling of the races, it demanded recognition of our right to our own customs, and to local self-government.

One of the resolutions called on Federal courts and agencies to exercise caution to avoid stirring up conflict between the races. It also urged Alabama members of Congress to "protect us against the continual encroachment of a powerful Federal Government in breaking down" States' rights.

The Supreme Court recently outlawed segregation at the University of Oklahoma and on railroad dining cars, and ordered the University of Texas to admit a Negro law student.—Reuter.

U.S. disarmament plan considered mainly academic

Lake Success, June 22.
The United States today formally proposed that the United Nations create an 11-nation watchdog agency to check on compliance with any future agreement on reduction of conventional or non-atomic arms and armed forces. The new agency, composed of 11 Security Council members, would have extensive powers of inspection unhampered by any veto power.

It would report promptly to the Security Council if any nation were discovered violating the disarmament pact.

The plan was put before the Soviet-backed UN Commission for Conventional Armaments by the American delegate, Frank Nash.

However, in view of the current state of East-West suspicion and mistrust, submission of the spelled-out scheme for supervising armaments was considered largely academic.

Prospects of Soviet bloc participation at this point were practically nil and no big powers were prepared to join the disarmament pact, much less allow UN inspection unless the Russians dealt themselves in.

In an apparent attempt to attract Soviet support for the scheme, the proposal appeared to make great efforts to meet Russia's half-way on the problem of inspection.

This provision for advance arrangements sounded much like Soviet policy in the past, and in which Russia offered to allow only inspection of specified plants at a stipulated period.

The majority-backed American plan on atomic control, on the other hand, provides for much wider inspection powers for the control agency, empowering it to make surprise spot checks without advance warning.

However, discussion of arms reduction generally has been stalled, not only on such key items as inspection, but on overall Soviet insistence that atomic control and conventional arms reduction must be planned and put into effect simultaneously.—United Press.

STEEL STRIKE IN SHEFFIELD

Sheffield, June 22.
Four thousand steelworkers were on strike here today because one man was suspended for taking a week's holiday without pay after being refused by his management.

At a mass meeting today the strikers said that they would return to work when the suspended man is reinstated.—Reuter.

Nuclear power stations for Britain

Harwell, Berkshire, June 22.
Britain's atomic scientists have made such progress into the use of nuclear power stations that a definite programme of development and construction of atom power stations has been submitted for the Government's approval.

This was stated here today by Dr. Cockcroft, Director of the £50,000,000 Atomic Energy Research Station at Harwell, during a special tour by about 100 newsmen, 12 of them from overseas.—Reuter.

APPOINTMENTS TO ATLANTIC PACT COUNCIL

London, June 22.
Sir Frederick Robert Hoyer-Millar, 50-year-old Minister in Washington, will represent Britain on the North Atlantic Council group to co-ordinate the plans of the 12-member nations.

He is the British deputy to the Executive Committee, which the North Atlantic Council decided to set up urgently at their London conference last month.

In Washington, President Harry Truman said at a news conference today that he will appoint Charles M. Spofford, New York lawyer, as United States deputy on the North Atlantic Pact Council.—Reuter and Associated Press.

ASIAN NATIONS AS ILO FORGOTTEN MEN

Geneva, June 22.
Mr. Anthony Fennema, the Dutch employers' delegate, told the International Labour Organisation here today that the Asian nations were tending to consider themselves the forgotten men of the Organisation.

"It is imperative that delegates do not come to our meetings and simply ask or say: What can the ILO do about raising the standards of the living of the people?" he said.

"You should rather come as responsible members of this Organisation and direct the line the ILO should take in achieving these objectives. The ILO does not live, work or function separately or apart from you. It is you," he added.

Mr. Fennema added that far too much time was wasted on the large numbers of speakers which left no time to read the various reports.

Mr. Anwar, the Pakistan Government delegate, said that despite a great influx of refugees during 1949 there had been no food shortages in Pakistan.

Prices generally, he said, were down and there had been also an appreciable fall in the price of foodstuffs.

Wages remained steady and at the same time unemployment had not been high.

Marked tendency

Mr. Anwar said that the question of increased productivity was directly linked with the proper distribution of increased production between various countries and regions.

"There is a marked tendency among some countries today to restrict imports and increase exports in order to avoid an adverse trade balance," he declared.

"This tendency, if permitted, is likely to disturb the economic equilibrium of the world," he continued.

"It is therefore essential that side by side with the desirability of a proper distribution of this increased production we should also insist on a proper distribution of the increased commodities between the various countries of the world so that maximum benefits should accrue from increased production."

Mr. Anwar said that the Pakistan Government has prepared an ambitious programme for industrial and agricultural expansion under a five-year plan.—Reuter.

FAKIR OF IPI ON WARPATH

Kabul, Afghanistan, June 22.
The Fakir of Ipi, militant tribal leader and stormy petrel of the North-West Frontier, is actively directing the Pushtun movement in Waziristan and the surrounding tribal areas, according to tribal chiefs now visiting Kabul.

(Pushtunistan is the name given to the independent State of Pushtun-speaking Pathans demanded by some North West Frontier tribes).

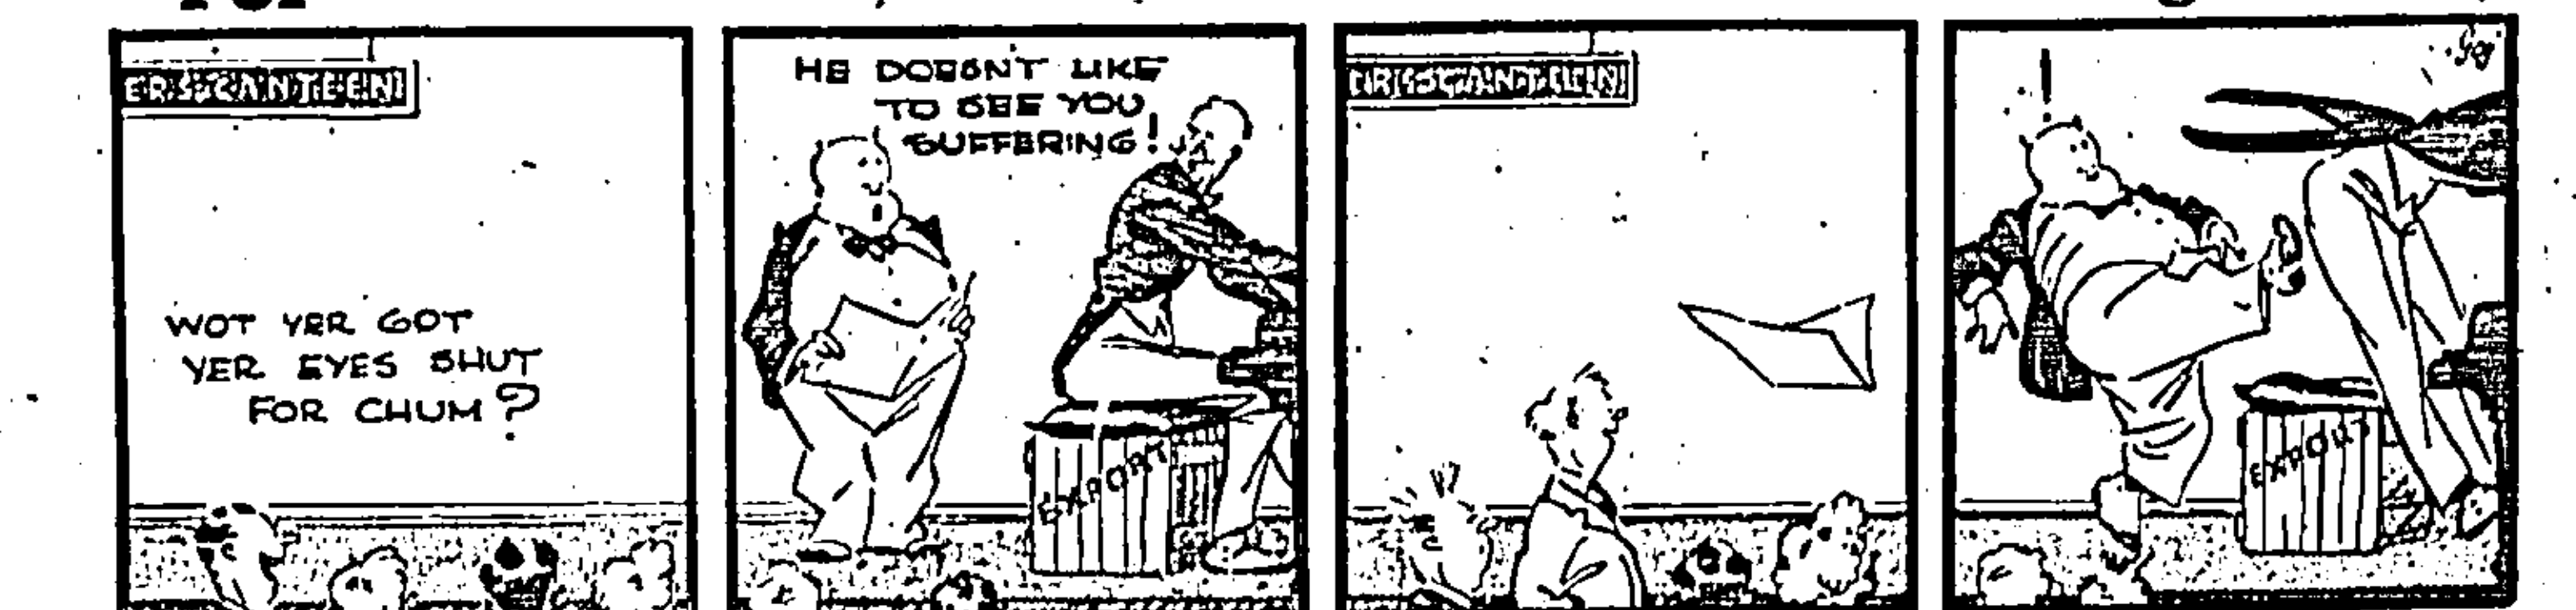

The chiefs, representing Waziris, Massohs, Dithanis and Dawar tribes, said that their campaign for the establishment of an independent Pushtunistan was steadily gaining momentum all along the Durand Line—the frontier between Pakistan and Afghanistan.

They said that a "parallel government" was already functioning in Waziristan and that the movement was finding increased support from various tribal peoples in the disputed area.

Claiming to be close associates of the Fakir of Ipi, the chiefs are now in Kabul seeking fresh support for their movement.

Their leader said, "We are not out to create trouble for anyone. We ask for nothing but our right to live as free men. We demand nothing but our right of self-determination."—Reuter.

London at the week-end

The Copenhagen speech made by Mr. Morgan Phillips, Secretary of the British Labour Party, has been sinking in. This was the speech at the International Socialist Conference in which Mr. Phillips said outright that British Socialism had little to do with Marxism. Was he speaking for his Party, and, if so, what may come of this very explicit avowal?

"Tribune" this week prints the exact text of Mr. Phillips' speech. It is so important that it may be worth while quoting rather lengthy extracts.

SHIP'S SAILING HELD UP

New York, June 22. The Norwegian Government vessel Svalbard, due to leave for Rotterdam with 600 students aboard today, was prevented from sailing by the U.S. Coast Guard on the grounds that it was a fire-trap.

The 880-ton vessel had been chartered by the National Students Association from the Norwegian Government. She was due to sail at 8 p.m. and many students already had arrived to board her when it was announced that she would be delayed.

The Coast Guard said the ship was a fire trap, was generally unsuitable and did not comply with regulations. The announcement, made at the pier, said she would be held up for 36 hours, but one Coast Guard official said, "She will not be allowed to clear this port with U.S. passengers in her present condition."

E. Childers, vice-president of the National Students Association, said: "Our contact with the Norwegian Government specifically provides that clearance of the vessel with passengers under the laws of the U.S. and the Netherlands is the responsibility of the owner."

Another official of NSA said the Svalbard had passed standard international fire regulations when she cleared Oslo for the U.S.—United Press.

DISPUTE OVER PRIEST MP

London, June 22. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council is to be asked whether the Church of Ireland priest, the Reverend Godfrey McManaway, a Unionist (Conservative) Member of Parliament for West Belfast, is eligible to sit in the House of Commons in London.

Accepting Mr. Winston Churchill's advice, Mr. McManaway took the risk of being fined £2500 a day—the penalty if he was not eligible—and took his seat. Today Mr. Herbert Morrison, the Deputy Prime Minister, suggested asking the Privy Council's opinion before the matter was debated—a half day has been tentatively fixed for a debate next Wednesday and Mr. Churchill, for the Opposition, agreed.

Mr. McManaway's eligibility to sit in the House of Commons is questioned because of an Act of 1801 disqualifying Irish clergymen from being Members of the Westminster Parliament. The question is how the Act's provisions are affected by the Bill of the Irish Church from the English in 1869. The churches had united a year before the passing of the controversial Act. A small Parliamentary Committee set up to inquire into his eligibility failed to reach a decision and urged legislation to put the matter right.—Reuter.

By Windrush

well as his politics were challenged and finally renounced by the founders and teachers of the British Labour Party.

Mr. Phillips contrasts Marxist Socialism with British Socialism. Marxism believes that Socialism cannot be brought about without "the militarisation of labour and the State compulsion of labour". This is anathema to British Socialism, whose basic inspiration is ethical. "Marxian Socialism disdains any ethical interpretation. There is hardly a trace of any human emotion in Marx's writings. But the writings from which British Socialists draw their inspiration are filled with ethical sentiments. British Socialists do not consider it at all a reproach or a source of weakness in their intellectual or political position that their movement has been profoundly influenced by religious thought. The very organisation of our British working class movement embodies much of the religious faith which we have taken over from religious institutions. It is a fact too, that the British Labour movement, both on its trade union and its political side, draw heavily for its leadership upon the religious communities."

Thus on the one side there is the philosophy of Marx which is the inspiration of so much of Continental Socialism. Marxism is based on a theory of economics and a theory of value. From these there proceed Marx's ideas of materialism and of the class war. On the other side, says Mr. Phillips, is British Socialism whose starting point is ethical ideas about the evils of the maldistribution and misuse of wealth, the domination of money, and the exploitation of the poor.

In the last resort, history is made by ideas. If the Labour Party as a whole is really about to repudiate Marxism, this will certainly have very interesting consequences in the history of the next decade or two.

The Scottish nationalists

There continue to be mutters from the Scotch nationalists. Four or five years ago nobody took the movement seriously. Today people are asking a little anxiously what it may lead to. There is an interesting article in the "Spectator" this week-end by Mr. James Bridle, the Scotch dramatist.

"Plenty of facts and arguments are available about Scottish home rule. But few of us on either side of the Tweed can be bothered with such things. Some time now the Southern half of the semi-detached has heard confused noises coming from the Northern half. Let us lean on the dividing fence and gossip."

Mr. Bridle thinks that what gave the movement its impetus was the coming of Socialism in England.

"In 1945 the planned State came out into the sunlight from underground caverns in which it had been hatching. Now the Scot is an inveterate planner. But he is allergic to instruction from strangers. If plans are to be made, he likes to plan them himself. A stream of directions from anonymous people in London got deeply under his skin. Last year, with extraordinary spontaneity, a huge number of Scots suddenly declared for a parliament in Edinburgh."

Mr. Bridle draws a portrait of the leader of the movement called the "Convener" a Glasgow lawyer named MacCormick. "He is a short, dark man. His pale face is drawn, his accents hurried into a suggestion of sorrow. He seems to think before he speaks, and then he speaks very well indeed. You are likely to hear a great deal more of him."

Economic crisis

The improved economic position is under one of the main topics of speculation. The "New Statesman" asks whether the economic crisis is really over. It answers that it is not. The improvement has been due to three causes—the continuance of the United States aid to the American economy from its setbacks last year, and the effects of devaluation in diminishing the competitive power of American exports. None of these causes can be expected to operate permanently. "Either a recession in the United States or a cessation of Marshall Aid would plunge us, in common with our neighbours and with most of the non-Soviet world, into a really severe economic crisis. Economists to the East of the Iron Curtain continue to regard Germany as a danger to Western Europe's 'depression' and are only uncertain when the axe's blow will fall."

One of the factors likely to upset our present prosperity is the German competition. The "New Statesman" thinks that the only way out of our difficulties is the development of trade with the countries of East Europe—behind the Iron Curtain. "For the present this is ruled out by the Soviet disagreements. Until the barriers between the two halves of Europe can be thrown down, our fortunes will depend upon an American bounty that we can neither do without nor afford to accept indefinitely."

Take France from the "Manchester Guardian". A school teacher was explaining that primitive religion was a local affair, with different gods in different districts. So, in those old days, she said, there would be a god for Wiltshire and another god for Rutland. (These are suburbs of Manchester.) "Oh, yes," said one of the children. "You registered with the god in your area."

TRIBAL DISPUTE SETTLED

Johannesburg, June 22. The Johannesburg "Star" reported today that Setere Khamu, exiled chief of the Bamangwato tribe, and his uncle, the former Regent, Tsheteki Khamu, have settled a dispute involving more than 10,000 cattle.

The newspaper said that they met in Lobatse, shook hands and spoke to each other for the first time in a year.

Setere was reported to have said he was getting a fair deal. The dispute arose over an inheritance from Setere's grandfather, Khamu III. It was the subject of litigation but the case was postponed since the pending a settlement.

The paper added that Tsheteki still refused to see Ruth Khamu, Setere's London-born white wife, who is now in Lobatse with Setere and their baby.—Reuter.

U.S. COMMANDER IN EUROPE

Washington, June 22. President Harry Truman today nominated Lieutenant-General Mark W. Clark to be Commanding General of United States Army forces in Europe. The President also asked the Senate to confirm the retirement of Clarence Ralph Huebner, Deputy Commander of the United States zone in Germany, and Commanding General of the United States Army in Europe in the grade of three-star General.—Associated Press.

San Francisco, June 22. Over 500 rural delegates, representing 10,000,000 peasants of the Han, Yao, Miao and Tung nationalities, have been attending a peasants' congress at Nanning, provincial capital of Kwangsi.

During the meeting reports were presented on such subjects as problems concerning rent reduction and land refundment and the organisation and work of the Peasants' Association. Reporting this tonight Peking Radio added that an Executive Committee of 55 was elected.—Reuter.

Nylons vital for getting husbands

London, June 22. Some women think that nylon stockings are vital for getting husbands, a Labour Member, Mr. Norman Dods, told the House of Commons today.

Many women preferred nylons to food and drink, he said amid laughter. They were not getting enough of nylons, he complained.

Mr. Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, said that the supply of English stockings to the domestic market had tripled in the past few months.—Reuter.

THE RED THREAT IN INDIA

London, June 22.

Brigadier J. G. Smyth, Conservative Member of Parliament, said today that Communism was gaining ground in India and urged the British Government to take an active interest in settling the Kashmir dispute.

In a letter to the "Daily Telegraph," Brigadier Smyth recalled his forecast of October 1947, when he warned that if Britain failed to settle the future of Hyderabad and Kashmir there was certain to be complete disagreement between India and Pakistan.

He said: "The fate of Hyderabad is now past history, but the continued deadlock over Kashmir is a problem of the present and future which the British Government cannot afford to ignore."

If the British Government did not show more concern regarding Kashmir, some other government would.

"My own information is that Communism has gained a great deal of ground recently in the Indian sub-continent—particularly in the Indian Republic and Communist India. It is a situation of uncertainty, distrust and suspicion like those which surround the Kashmir question."—United Press.

SUBMARINE TO SURVEY SEABED

Malta, June 22.

The British submarine Talent left today for a two months' survey of the bed of the Eastern Mediterranean to chart its under-sea contours and determine the structure of large rock masses under the bed itself.

A submarine was chosen for the survey work because it provides a stable platform for the operation of delicate instruments, far below the swell and surface motion of the sea. The findings will be important to navigation.—Reuter.

RUMANIAN ENVOY RESIGNS

Rome, June 22.

The Rumanian Minister to Italy, Professor Mihail Dragomirescu, has resigned his post and refused to return to his country.

The Counsellor at the Rumanian Legation in Rome, Mihail Levin, today announced to the Italian Ministry of Foreign Affairs that he had been placed in the post of Professor Dragomirescu. The former Minister was reported to be intending to remain in Rome.—Reuter.

San Francisco, June 22.

Mr. Chou En-lai, the Chinese Foreign Minister, told a Czechoslovak News Agency correspondent in Peking that the Sino-Czechoslovak trade agreement of June 14 would be of help to the industrialization of China.

Mr. Chou also said that the agreement between the two Governments was "an important beginning of friendly economic co-operation between the Chinese and Czech peoples", according to Peking Radio tonight.

It would, Mr. Chou added, be of help to the economic reconstruction of both countries as well as to China's industrialization.

He saw the agreement as presaging the growth and development of trade between Czechoslovakia and China.

Asked about the effect of the agreement on world peace, Mr. Chou said, "Economic co-operation between China and Czechoslovakia has strengthened the friendship and unity of China and Czechoslovakia."

"This is a great contribution to world peace, headed by the Soviet Union."

Wolfram and tin
Peking Radio also reported tonight that the output of wolfram and tin in Kwangsi, Kwangsi and other provinces in the Central South China area had risen sharply during May.

Wolfram output in Hunan Province was 68 per cent above the May target while tin production in Shingli, in the Kweichow area of Kwangsi, was 130 per cent above expectations.

Wolfram mines of the State-owned non-ferrous metal Bureau in Kwangsi—where the world's richest wolfram region is located—surpassed the May quota by 2.2 per cent.

Output of manganese in the Leping region of Kwangsi was 85 per cent above the target.

Manchurian trade
The Peking broadcast said, too, that statistics of trade between Manchuria and the rest of China in the five months of 1950 showed that nearly one-fourth, or 22 1/2 per cent of the total value of Manchuria's exports consisted of grain.

Machinery, chemicals, fuel oil, timber, power, scrap iron and structural steel made up 51.7 per cent of other exports.

Of imports 35.8 per cent consisted of cotton and cloth, mostly from Tientsin and Shanghai. Other imports included medicines, dyes, rubber, products, electrical parts and household utensils for farmers.—Reuter.

Money Market
US dollars opened yesterday at HK$5.96 1/2, went up to $5.97, and closed at $5.98 1/2.

Australian pounds were unchanged at HK$12.45. Pounds remained nominal at HK$12 a 100.

Ticals went up another 10 cents to HK$27 a 100. NEI Guilders, on the other hand, dropped another 10 cents to HK$2 a 100.

SWAZILAND PLAN
Lord Tregear, chairman of the Government-financed Colonial Development Corporation, today announced a plan to spend £2,000,000 in a stock breeding and crop development project in Swaziland.

The Corporation has bought 110,000 acres of partly irrigated lands.

Lord Tregear said the project should be of substantial economic benefit to Swaziland but did not comment on what possibilities it offered as a pioneering step in opening up African territories for most production.—Associated Press.

The disclosure was made in the fourth annual report of Dr. C. J. MacKenzie, President of the Board, which was tabled in the Parliament by the Trade Minister, C. D. Howe.—United Press.

SHANGHAI GETS MORE FISH
Shanghai's fishermen are doing brisk trade with the arrival of the season's first catches of the Chushan group of islands which Chinese Communist forces occupied a month ago.

Peking Radio said tonight that some 60 fishing vessels brought in a daily average of 250 tons of fish from the islands.—Reuter.

U.S. WARSHIPS TO BE MODERNISED
Washington, June 22.
A Senate Appropriations Subcommittee today approved funds for the United States Navy to modernize 10 submarines and six destroyers. The submarines would be converted into the "shorkel" type at a cost of $2,200,000.

The shorkel is a breathing device which enables a submarine to remain submerged for long periods.

The six destroyers would be reconstructed into the most modern-type vessels with the newest anti-submarine and anti-aircraft weapons. The exact cost was not specified.—Reuter.

LONDON STOCKS
London, June 22.
Firmness of British Government bonds and good mining shares featured a quiet session of the stock exchange. Selected oils were in good demand and rubber shares enjoyed a minor gain. Most industrial stocks held steady.

Japanese bonds closed with sharp gains. The 1937 series touched 63 1/2 up 1 1/2. The 1937 series finished at 40 1/4 up 7/8, and the 1910 series ended at 34 up 3/4.

These bonds have attracted speculation in recent weeks because of prospects of a peace treaty for Japan.

TAXI STRIKE
London, June 22.
The Labour Ministry, Mr. George Isaacs, tonight intervened in the taxi dispute with the New half London's 6,000 cabs off the streets for the rest of the week.

The "unholy" war between the taxi owners and the taxi drivers, which has been going on since the war, has now reached a new stage. The taxi owners have decided to take the taxi drivers' demand for a 10 per cent increase in fares.

HAPPY AUGURY FOR ENGLAND SELECTORS

Butlin's Holiday Camp comes to rescue of Fraser

Southampton, June 22. Butlin's Holiday Camp Organisation came to the rescue today of George Fraser, the 44-year-old wounded American ex-serviceman from Dennisport, Massachusetts, who is determined to swim the English Channel.

The company furnished a bond, which was approved by immigration officials, guaranteeing Fraser financially during his stay in Britain.

Fraser, who has been held on board the Queen Elizabeth since the docked yesterday because of insufficient funds, was permitted to land.

"It is a wonderful offer," Fraser said. "Now for that Channel."

"Butlin's Holiday Camp Organisation has offered to pay my expenses in Britain and my return fare to the States," Fraser said as he stood alone on the deck of the liner.

"I will train at Dover and make personal appearances at their holiday camps."

Fraser said that he also had offers of assistance from Mrs. Earle of London, who told him that she would like to help in return for aid she received when she was evacuated to New York in 1940, and from Jim Alrezi of Fawley, England, who said he once lived at Cape Cod—Associated Press.

A happy augury for the England selectors, worried by injuries to Reg Simpson and Trevor Bailey, was the splendid batting form shown today by Len Hutton for Yorkshire against Essex.

Playing his first innings since the Manchester Test match, in which he fractured a finger, Hutton hit 156 runs in three hours and 55 minutes, with 15 fours.

With Frank Lowson, he put on 152 runs for the opening stand, and Yorkshire eventually led by 178 runs on the first innings.

Rain again interfered with most of the County matches.

Simpson did not resume his innings for Nottingham Midland after his injury yesterday.

Joe Hardstaff dominated the play in this match, hitting brilliantly for 149 runs not out. Driving fiercely, he hit 16 boundaries and was at the wicket for four hours and 40 minutes.

Completes 1,000 runs. Jack Livingston, who captained the Commonwealth team in India, Pakistan and Ceylon, today completed his thousand runs for the season when he hit a century for Northamptonshire against Somerset, his first hundred for the County.

He is the fourth player to reach the thousand-run mark this season.

In an attractive innings of 104 runs, Livingston hit two sixes and 13 fours.

Tom Goddard, Gloucestershire's 49-year-old offspinner, claimed five Hampshire wickets.

London, June 23. Trevor Bailey, the Essex all-rounder, has withdrawn from the England team for the second Test against the West Indies tomorrow, because of a strained groin muscle.—Reuter.

Channel swimmers about to take over

By BEN PHLEGAR

London, June 22.

It looks like a tough summer for ships in the English Channel. Even the fish may have to move if they want peace and quiet.

Channel swimmers are about to take over in the most gigantic assault in history upon the 19 miles of treacherous tides that split England from France.

Conservative indications are that between early July and late September some two dozen determined men and women will plunge into the cold water at Cap Gris Nez, France.

Each will be confident that about 15 to 20 hours later he will be able to walk up on one of the beaches which stretch around the hump of South East England from Folkestone to Margate.

Last year 11 swimmers made 17 attempts. Six men succeeded.

The bulk of the attack on the channel—which has been conquered by swimmers only 33 times—will come in mid-August.

The Daily Mail, a London morning newspaper, is organising a contest for 20 of the world's best professional long distance swimmers.

Waiting on the English shore will be prizes of £1,000 ($12,800) each for the first man and woman among the 20 to negotiate the distance plus £250 ($3,200) for each additional successful crossing.

Hand picked entries. The 20 hand picked entries will go into the water as dawn breaks over the French coast some morning between August 15 and August 22.

Each of the 20 will have his own pilot boat—a small rugged power-driven craft—and a row boat for his coach or trainer.

In addition there will be a mother ship equipped to direct the contest and give sea-weather reports a mile across the channel.

The mother ship plans to be in contact with each of the pilot boats by radio and sleep speed boats will dart through the armada to keep track of stragglers.

Swimmers from 11 countries have been entries for the contest. Three of them—Willy van Rillo of Holland and Sam Rockett and Margaret Feather of England—already are practising at Folkestone on the English coast.

Individual attempts also will be the swimming calendar. Shirley Mae Francis, the American school girl from Somerset, Massachusetts, whose unsuccessful first year year brought more publicity about the channel than any other swimming feat in 50 years, is coming over again.

Dragged out of water

Shirley Mae Francis, the American school girl, was dragged out of the water by her father before he was himself pulled out of the water because of the cold.

Philip Mickman of England, one of the six men who made it a year ago, may try again on his own.

He declined an invitation to enter the Daily Mail contest because he wants to remain an amateur.

The Amateur Swimming Association of Great Britain has ruled that entries in the contest automatically will be declared professionals because of the chance to win money.

The newspaper has received 30 prospective entries for its marathon of the sea. E. H. Temme of London, one of three men who have swum the channel in both directions, will review the entries and advise those who he feels would not have a chance not to come.

This pruning is due about July 1, deadline for contest entries. If more than 20 remain it will be up to Temme to decide on some form of eliminating contest.

Ever changing tides. The entries will have to pay all of their own travel and training expenses, but the newspaper will pay for the boats and the pilot, whose job is to pick the shortest course through the ever changing tides in the channel.

Entries so far received include four from the United States and its possessions; three each from France and Germany; two each from Greece and Denmark; and one each from Belgium, Israel, Holland, Finland and Sweden.

The non-British entries are: United States and possessions: Steve Wornick, Buffalo, New York; David Frank, New York City; William Melvin Long, San Francisco, California; Luis de la Rosa, San Juan, Puerto Rico; France: Andre Guerin, Emilio Savon, Germaine Plante, Western Germany: Johannes Joseph Mahn, Ernst Kriehel, Michael Jakobowski, Greece: Major Zoran Zilgancan, Panagiotis, Kambouris, Denmark: Elva Anderson, Jenny Kammergaard, Holland: Willy van Rillo, Sweden: Lars Beril, Wario, Denmark; Edward Musche.—Associated Press.

London, June 22.

A happy augury for the England selectors, worried by injuries to Reg Simpson and Trevor Bailey, was the splendid batting form shown today by Len Hutton for Yorkshire against Essex.

Playing his first innings since the Manchester Test match, in which he fractured a finger, Hutton hit 156 runs in three hours and 55 minutes, with 15 fours.

With Frank Lowson, he put on 152 runs for the opening stand, and Yorkshire eventually led by 178 runs on the first innings.

Rain again interfered with most of the County matches.

Simpson did not resume his innings for Nottingham Midland after his injury yesterday.

Completes 1,000 runs. Jack Livingston, who captained the Commonwealth team in India, Pakistan and Ceylon, today completed his thousand runs for the season when he hit a century for Northamptonshire against Somerset, his first hundred for the County.

He is the fourth player to reach the thousand-run mark this season.

In an attractive innings of 104 runs, Livingston hit two sixes and 13 fours.

Tom Goddard, Gloucestershire's 49-year-old offspinner, claimed five Hampshire wickets.

London, June 23. Trevor Bailey, the Essex all-rounder, has withdrawn from the England team for the second Test against the West Indies tomorrow, because of a strained groin muscle.—Reuter.

SUSSEX FACE BIG DEFEAT

Hove, June 23.

Sussex have scored 61 for two wickets in their second innings by lunch on the last day of their match against the West Indies here.

Heavy overnight rain delayed the start over an hour. The parched wicket was not seriously affected since it had been covered at each end and a strong wind was drying it out rapidly. Weather conditions remained far from promising.

Ramadhini and Worrell opened the bowling but a quick change proved successful when Smith turned the third delivery from Pierre, the fast bowler, tamely into the hands of backward short-ler at 25.

The batsmen were cautious and runs came slowly. The pitch did not appear to give the bowlers any special help but one ball from Worrell, again bowling above medium pace, got up sharply and struck Oakes on the left ear. He was shaken but quickly continued.

Langridge sent up the 50 in an hour and a half with a snick for four off Pierre and then Gomez and Valentine came on. This brought another wicket when Oakes was caught low down off Gomez at short leg. Lunch came with Sussex 196 behind with two men out.

Under a handicap. Stollmeyer stayed for just one and a half hours and hit 15 runs. He laboured under a handicap after 68 runs, when he was hit on the thumb and had to leave the field for attention. He had given a hard chance in the slips when 51 runs.

At the lunch interval, on the second day of the match, the tourists were 104 runs for no wickets in reply to the County's first innings total of 250 runs.

At the interval the West Indies had scored 404 runs for the loss of one wicket.

Records went by the board between lunch and tea, by which time the score was raised for the loss of Rae's wicket.

Rae and Stollmeyer put on 353 runs before Rae was hit before lunch. When they had scored 351, they beat the record for any West Indies partnership.

New record. Earlier they established a new record for a West Indies first wicket in England by passing the 210 runs of Challenger and Tarrington against Nottingham 27 years ago.

Only five runs were added after the wicket. Worrell was caught at the wicket. Stollmeyer did not seem to be in the field.

Then Stollmeyer, playing forward, was bowled at 120 runs. He had batted for about five and a half hours, hitting 14 fours.

Trent and Valentine raised the total to 477 runs before Stollmeyer declared. The West Indies had scored 404 runs for the loss of one wicket.

Recreio "Blue" to clash with HKFC in match of the week

By "JACK-HIGH"

Weather permitting, a full programme of 11 League Lawn Bowls matches will be played off today, the best game of the day in the First Division being the match between Hong Kong Football Club and the powerful Club do Recreio "Blue" at Happy Valley.

Against Kowloon Bowling Green Club last week, Recreio "Blue" won on aggregate, although losing on two rinks.

The Portuguese are likely to find the Hong Kong Football Club a hard nut to crack, but I expect them to come away with at least four points.

Recreio "White" will be at home to Kowloon Bowling Green Club and a good game should be seen, with the odds slightly in favour of the visitors.

Another good game should be that between Police Recreation Club and Craigengower Celtic Club on the former's green.

runs the third wicket partnership of 350 runs by Weekes and Worrell against Cambridge University this season.

Each batsman reached his highest score of the season, one not being 172 runs before the stand was broken and Stollmeyer going on to 188 runs. Rae hit 18 runs in a stay of four hours and 40 minutes, giving one possible chance at 85 runs and he might have been stumped at 148 runs.

Under a handicap. Stollmeyer stayed for just one and a half hours and hit 15 runs. He laboured under a handicap after 68 runs, when he was hit on the thumb and had to leave the field for attention. He had given a hard chance in the slips when 51 runs.

Queen's Club Lawn Tennis Championships

London, June 22. Frank Sedgman, 22-year-old Australian who is seeded No. 1 at Wimbledon, today beat the No. 12 seed, Victor Seixas (United States) 3-6, 6-3 and 6-3 in the match of the day at the London Grass Court Championships to reach the semi-finals of the men's singles.

Playing with his injured right wrist well strapped up, Sedgman was erratic in the first set but later mixed his game cleverly, first by pinning Seixas to the baseline and then passing him as he came up the court.

Sedgman's injured wrist caused him to retire from the men's doubles later in the day. He is continuing his osteopathic treatment tomorrow morning and will play, if possible, his singles semi-final match against Larnach.

Other results. The results of the other men's singles quarter-finals were: Eric Sturges (South Africa) beat Ken McGregor (Australia) by 6-3 and 6-2. Art Larsen (United States) beat Tony Trabert (United States) by 6-4 and 6-4.—Reuter.

Two Mixed Doubles "B" Division League matches were played yesterday in spite of the heavy afternoon shower.

South China one of the remaining two unbeaten teams in this Division, overwhelmed Ladies' Recreation Club by nine sets to nil, and are all set for the deciding encounter with Chinese Recreation Club, the other unbeaten team.

United Services Recreation Club scored another good win in this Division, beating University by 5½ to 3½.

LAWN BOWLS. With reference to your reports of the Open Pairs encounter at the P.R.C. on June 19, the writer did not participate in the Hirocock and Pile versus Ribeiro and Rodrigues match.

He was and still is confined to bed on medical advice. Needless to emphasize, the publication of his name in your Sports Column through the school boy prank of one "Rabbit" bowler might have caused some unpleasantness with his employers and office colleagues.

F. J. RODRIGUES.

First win likely. Hong Kong Cricket Club should win their first match of the season when they meet Kowloon Bowling Green Club at Chater Road, while Taihook Dock Club should also succeed in beating Hong Kong Football Club at Quarry Bay.

In the Third Division, Police Recreation Club should have the better of Kowloon Dock at Happy Valley.

Club do Recreio should collect at least four points in their match against Kowloon Cricket Club at King's Park.

In the remaining Third Division game at Ming Yuen, Hong Kong Electric Recreation Club will find the Police Recreation Club a hard team to beat.

Today's programme. The following is the programme for today:

First Division: HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC.

Second Division: HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC.

Third Division: HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC, HKFC v KRC.

Baseball:

Giants sweep Cards in a double-header

New York, June 22.

Right-hander Larry Jansen and southpaw Dave Koslo each hurled shutouts as the New York Giants swept a double-header from St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 and 5-0.

Jansen extended his consecutive scoreless inning total to 29 innings with a six-hitter in the opener, Koslo limited the Redbirds to only two hits in the nightcap.

The double defeat dropped the Cards into third place, a half game behind the front running Brooklyn Dodgers and four percentage points behind the second place Philadelphia Phillies.

First baseman Ted Klussek and catcher Bob Schoening batted in eight runs between them to lead the cellar-dwelling Cincinnati Reds to their second straight triumph over the first place Brooklyn Dodgers, 9-5.

Herman Wehmeier, with a three hitter going into the eighth inning, was tagged for a brace of two-run homers by center-fielder Duke Snider and first baseman Gil Hodges, but went on to gain his fourth victory.

Bob Miller, the Philadelphia Phillies' prize bonus rookie, posted his sixth straight victory, with-out defeat as the Phils turned over the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4.

Miller was aided by three Phil Homers, by left-fielder Del Ennis third baseman Willie Jones and right-fielder Bill Nicholson.

A triple play. Left-hander Bill Kiner homered for the Pirates. The Phils pulled a triple play in the seventh.

These were the only games scheduled in the National League. Scoring all but one of their runs on homers, the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Yankees 6-2 in the American League to take the odd game of the three game series.

Joe Ostrowski, making his first start for the Yankees, threw five home run balls, two apiece to first baseman Luke Easter and catcher Jim Hegan and one to shortstop Ray Boone.

Bob Feller won his seventh for the Indians, also had home run trouble, fielding round trippers to outfielder Joe DiMaggio and first baseman Johnny Mize.

A 13 hit spree. The Washington Senators went on a 13 hit spree as they beat Detroit 5-2 for the third straight win over the Tigers.

The Chicago White Sox scored three runs in the first inning and coasted a 4-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox behind Ray Scarborough's four-hit pitching.

First baseman Eddie Robinson drove in all four of the White Sox runs with a first inning homer and an eighth inning single.

Coach Steve O'Neill directed the Red Sox as manager Joe McCarthy returned to his home in Buffalo, New York, for a complete physical examination.

Soccer players alleged to have disappeared. Rio De Janeiro, June 22. The Rio newspaper OJornal reported today that the English footballers Stanley Matthews and Jim Taylor had disappeared on their way from the United States to Rio.

The manager of the English team, Walter Winterbottom, called the report "nonsense, pure nonsense."

"They are somewhere on their way and have probably been delayed by weather."

The English team will go to Sao Paulo on June 26, the day after their game with Chile, to be there in advance of their match with the United States on June 29. They will return to Rio on June 30.

Parola and Amadei may be unable to play for the Italian side against Sweden on Sunday because of slight tramping injuries. The Swedish team were playing a practice game against Vasco de Gama reserves today.

The Swedes will remain in Rio until Saturday night, when they will see the Brazilians and Mexicans in action and will then leave for Sao Paulo for the match with Italy's clubs.—Associated Press.
